Pope Balloting Goes On; Smoke-Watchers Fooled

—Two Murder Charges—

Jury Selection Begins Today In Caril's Trial

200 Prospective Jurors Will Jam Courtroom First Few Days

By Del Harding

Caril Fugate goes on trial for murder at 9 a.m. Monday, but don't plan to attend a court session before Wednesday or Thursday.

Judge Harry A. Spencer said his courtroom will be filled to capacity by 200 prospective jurors until the task of selecting a jury to hear the case is completed.

And the jury selection is expected to take until late Wednesday afternoon or more likely sometime Thursday.

At the trial last May of Caril's former boy friend, Charles Starkweather, it took until Thursday afternoon to select 72 jurors and 2 alternate jurors acceptable to both the defense and prosecution. Ninety-five prospective jurors were questioned by defense and prosecution attorneys before the final 14 were approved by both sides.

Many Had Decided

The big difficulty at the Starkweather trial was finding jurors who had not formed an opinion as to the redhead's guilt. The defense had a hard time finding jurors who had not already made up their minds that Starkweather was guilty.

Although this may also be a factor in Caril's trial, the prosecution is expected to have some difficulty in finding jurors who, if they believed the evidence justified it, would sentence the 15-year-old girl to death in the electric chair.

County Atty. Elmer Scheele is required by law in qualifying the jurors to ask them if they would invoke the death penalty if the evidence convinced them it was justified.

In the first degree murder convictions the jury must set the penalty at either life imprisonment or death.

Caril's trial is not expected to last as long as Starkweather's did. His trial was lengthened by medical testimony as to his sanity, and this is not expected to be an issue in Caril's trial.

2-2½ Weeks

Starkweather's trial lasted 3 weeks (15 court days). Caril's trial is expected to run from 2 to 2½ weeks.

Court-appointed defense Atty. John McArthur is expected to contend that Caril was Starkweather's hostage during the winter murder spree which claimed 10 lives in Nebraska and Wyoming. This is what Caril herself told a news conference Oct. 20.

But Scheele is expected to counter that Caril was not a hostage but Starkweather's willing helper during the crime rampage.

Caril is charged specifically with first degree murder and with murder while in the perpetration of a robbery in the death of Robert Jensen, 17, of Bennet, Jan. 27. Both charges carry the death penalty upon conviction and recommendation of the jury.

New Day For Protestant Church Near, Dr. Miller Tells Faith Festival

By David Clark

"A new day is dawning for the Protestant church," Dr. Arthur Miller of the Montview Presbyterian Church told more than 2,000 Protestants of all denominations Sunday night.

Speaking at the second annual Festival of Faith celebrating Reformation Day, Dr. Miller listed what he called 4 evidences of change:

Men are thinking in terms of one world, the participation of laymen in the work of the church, a dult education and a new understanding of the nature of the church, all of which show that "today protestantism has even greater significance than 400 years ago."

A choir of more than 200 voices from some 45 participating churches massed in Pershing Municipal Auditorium for the service. Paul Reynolds, First-Plymouth Congregational Church, led the singing.

Dr. Miller, a former pastor of Lincoln's First Presbyterian Church, is now pastor of the Montview Presbyterian Church of Denver.

'Tragic Factor'

"It is breathtaking to think of what has happened in this last decade," he said. "But the tragic factor is that while a development of wealth has been going on, there has been no corresponding growth in spiritual faith."

"It's a significant fact," he said, "that this nation, which produced more inner-spring mattresses than any other, at the same time produced more tranquilizers."

And yet, Dr. Miller said, the future has hope.

"We have begun to be identified with the church in Korea, believing they have something to say to us. No longer can we stand apart as a rich and powerful nation. We must become a part of the life of those nations and seek to learn from them as we impart to them."

'Laymen's Church'

"We have begun to realize," he said, "within Protestantism that if the church is to have power it must not be a priest-ridden church or a preacher-ridden church but a layman's church."

Adult education is a third corollary to the first two statements, Dr. Miller said. "Paul said the body has unity. All its parts need each other. How true that is. What happens to any Christian happens to me," he said.

'Sensitivity' Cited

"The Protestant church has a tremendous contribution to make through its sensitivity," Dr. Miller concluded. The Festival of Faith was sponsored by the Lincoln Council of Churches and the National Lutheran Council and other co-operating churches.

Dr. Thomas C. Dick of the First-Plymouth Congregational Church was general chairman.

The invocation was given by Chaplain A. E. K. Brenner of Lincoln Air Force Base. Dr. Frederick A. Roblee, president of the Lincoln Ministerial Fellowship, introduced Dr. Miller.

The Rev. L. R. Davis of Trinity Methodist Church led the responsive reading. Dr. C. Vin White of the First Presbyterian Church and the Rev. Walter Morris, president of the National Lutheran Council Pastors, gave prayers.

Four Ballots Taken

Confusion Sets Throng To Cheering

Vatican City (Monday) (P)—Fifty-one cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church scheduled a fifth ballot in their conclave to elect a successor to the late Pope Pius XII.

They were to resume their deliberations at 10 a.m. in the secrecy of the Sistine Chapel. They balloted 4 times Sunday without succeeding in choosing a new pontiff.

A smoke signal meant to tell the world of the outcome of the voting also did not succeed and people around the world thought for several minutes Sunday night a new pope had been elected.

White—But No Pope

Finally, assurances were sent out of the conclave that the smoke should have been black, a sign no pope had been chosen. For several minutes, the smoke had been white, a sign a pontiff had been elected.

The conclave marshal, Sigismondo Chigi, was one of the Vatican officials who jumped to the alert on the false alarm. He later assured newsmen he would arrange to have the cardinals informed of the confusion in hope of improving the signaling system. He did not say how he thought it might be revised.

The cardinals now have been in conclave since 6 p.m. Saturday. Pope Pius XII was elected in 1939 after 20 hours. Three ballots were required in that conclave, one of the shortest ever.

The smoke signal is the only indication the outside world has of how their meeting is going.

A crowd of about 200,000 Romans and tourists waited in St. Peter's Square during the first day of the balloting and for a time they were certain the church had a new pontiff.

Millions of others who listened to radios throughout Italy and Europe also were certain. They heard the Vatican radio speaker shout exultantly:

"A pope is elected."

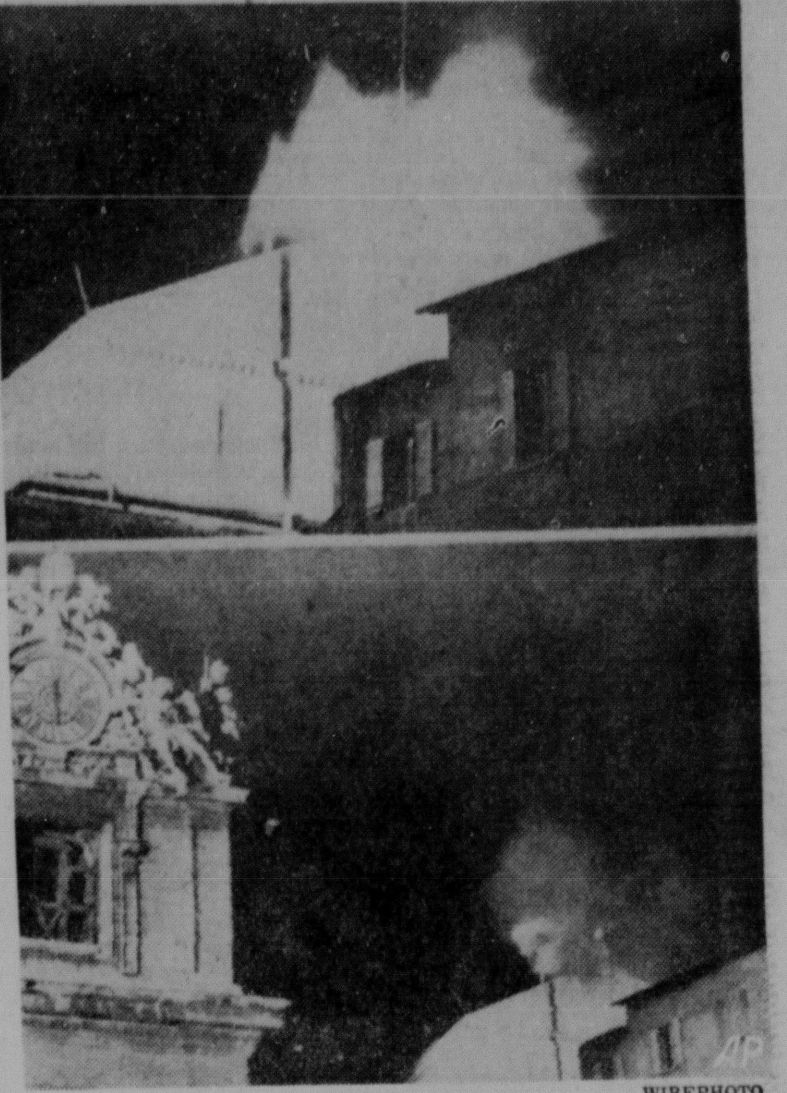

The scene around the Vatican was one of incredible confusion.

White Means Success

White smoke from a little chimney atop the Vatican is the traditional signal announcing the election of a new pope. Black smoke indicates failure.

At nightfall white smoke billowed from the slender chimney for a full 5 minutes. For all the outside world knew, a new pontiff had been chosen.

The Vatican Radio announced the smoke was white. The announcer declared the cardinals at that moment probably were going through the rites of adoration for a new supreme pontiff. For a long time Vatican radio stuck to its insistence the smoke was white.

WHAT CONFUSED WATCHERS

The top photo shows the white smoke puffs coming from the Sistine Chapel smokestack and the bottom photo shows the same smoke as it turns to gray a few minutes later.

His wife, Eleanor, slipped behind the wheel. An obliging motorist offered to push. The motorist pushed, Harvey's car started, Mrs. Harvey drove off, and there was Harvey, still coattless and still holding the flashlight. It was raining.

Mrs. Harvey didn't come back right away. Harvey hitched a ride in her direction. Meanwhile, Mrs. Harvey turned around, came back, and couldn't find Harvey.

Mrs. Harvey called police, and they started a search. Two hours later, Harvey called police.

Police told Harvey to stay put. Mrs. Harvey arrived. Harvey climbed in, still coattless and very wet.

1st Commercial Jet To Paris Carrying 111

... U.S. Airlines Enter New Era

New York (UPI)—The nation's first commercial jet airliner left here Sunday night carrying 111 pioneering passengers, including actress Greer Garson, on a flight to Paris launching regular daily trans-Atlantic commercial service.

A sleek huge 4-jet Pan American World Airways Boeing 707 streaked off an Idlewild Airport runway to inaugurate the first commercial jet service linking New York and Paris.

Among the 40 deluxe and 71 economy fare passengers on the plane were a number of veterans of "first flights," who collect inaugural passenger tickets the way some persons save stamps.

British Overseas Airways Corporation became the first airline to establish commercial jet trans-Atlantic service. It began weekly flights connecting New York and London 3 weeks ago.

First Daily But Pan American offered the first jet service to Paris and the first daily jet service between the continents.

The plane that flew across the ocean Sunday night will leave Paris at noon Monday and arrive here at 9:25 p.m.

Fares for the trip were $505 for one-way deluxe and $272 for one-way economy.

One of the "first fliers" was Karl Eric Johanson, 17-year-old Valhalla, N.Y., high school student. He began saving his money when he was 12 for the first jet flight and made a reservation on this plane without telling his parents.

ents, Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Johanson.

Dad Impressed

His father was so impressed with his interest that he offered to pay for his round-trip ticket. Karl will miss only two days of school, returning from Paris on Wednesday.

Mrs. Samuel N. Comly of Greenwich, Conn., made the trip as a memorial to her father, the late Mark W. Cresap, of Winnetka, Ill. Mrs. Comly and her husband went together to keep up the tradition Cresap started when he was a passenger on Pan American's first Boeing flying boat from Port Washington, N.Y., to Lisbon and Marseilles, in 1939.

Facilities Make Hog Raising Big Business

By David Clark
Douglas, Neb. — From sow to market without touching the ground.
That's the aim of Norman Hull, Douglas farmer, who recently completed construction on one of the largest individual hog raising operations in eastern Nebraska.
Hull, who lives 3 miles northeast of here, used scrap lumber and did most of the work himself to build for $5,000 what would almost certainly be a job worth $10,000 on the market.
Hull built 2 large buildings, 120 x 24 feet and 32 x 21 feet. The larger serves as a finishing floor where the young pigs go when they are 8 weeks old and stay until they are 5 months old and ready for sale.
The smaller building is a farrowing house containing 8 pens for sows with new litters and 8 more pens into which the pigs go for weaning.
The finishing floor and farrowing house both have concrete floors graded for easy drainage. Automatic water supplies have been installed to heat drinking water in the water.

The 8 farrowing pens have electric wiring in the floor to enable Hull to heat the pens during cold weather, and he has heat lamps to warm the air above the floor.
Hull estimates the capacity of his operation at 320 pigs.
"We hope to have three to four crops each year," he said.
Hull hopes, through his farrowing pens, to save many a young pig from being rolled on. The expense of building pens will pay off in the higher numbers of hogs raised, he feels.
Hull's whole operation is based on scientific methods of hog raising. He decided, because of high costs involved in raising hogs by older methods, to modernize his system. He studied methods used at Iowa State College and the University of Nebraska, and then drew up his own plans.
Hull even uses a gasoline garden plover to scrape clean the floor of his finishing house. The manure goes into concrete drains, which carry it into a pit. Later he will put the manure in his fields.

Mrs. Roosevelt, Mamie, Dietrich 'Best Dressed'
New York (UPI) Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Marlene Dietrich and Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower shared top billing Sunday on the latest list of the nation's best dressed women.
The annual list of the Fashion Foundation of America, one of several organizations that rates fashion plates every year, rated Mrs. Roosevelt as the best dressed "All-American woman."
The judges said that Mrs. Roosevelt exemplified "senior citizen dignity." She replaced the wife of New Jersey's Gov. Robert Meyner in the "All-American" category.
Mrs. Eisenhower rated the title of best dressed woman in public life and Miss Dietrich was named best dressed supper club entertainer.
Others listed included:
Mrs. Clare Booth Luce, "Ambassador of fashion;" Mrs. William Paley, wife of the board chairman of the Columbia Broadcasting System, "Society;" Miss Eileen Kingsbury-Smith of New York, "debutante;" Cornelia Otis Skinner, "Stage;" Dorothy Kilgallen and Ariane Francis, "television;" Mrs. Wilbur Clark of Las Vegas, Nev., "Hostess;" Ingrid Bergman, "Screen;" Denis Lor, "night clubs;" Mary G. Roebing, Trenton, N.J., "banking;" Mrs. Frederick E. M. Ballou of New York and the Virginia Islands, "Sports set;" and Candy Jones Conover, "business."

$100,000 In Gems Stolen

... Albuquerque

Albuquerque, N.M. (AP)—Police disclosed the reported theft of $100,000 to $150,000 in precious stones from the vault of the Hilton Hotel.
The theft was reported by Sal G. LaSalle of Newhide, L.I., an employee of the William V. Schmidt Co. of New York City.
LaSalle told police he checked into the Hilton en route home from Los Angeles. He was given a claim check and the briefcase containing diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires placed in the vault.
When he presented the claim check, the briefcase was missing. The loss was made public only Sunday night.
FBI Called In
The FBI said it had been called in on the case to determine if any violation of federal law was involved. Federal agents can enter such grand larceny cases only when more than $5,000 is involved and shipment across state lines is suspected.
Mark Neal, assistant Hilton manager, said he had no theories on how the briefcase vanished from the locked vault.
"It's our vault, the briefcase is missing, and our face is pretty red," Neal said.
LaSalle was unavailable for comment, and the FBI said he may have returned to New York City.

Sheriff Nabs Grand Island Jail Escapees

Grand Island, Neb. (AP)—Two youths, who attacked the jailer's wife and escaped from the Hall County jail Saturday night, were captured Sunday just southeast of Giltner.
Sheriff Sam Stobbe said they were driving a stolen truck tractor. They offered no resistance and were returned to the Hall County jail, the sheriff said.
Mrs. John Wheeler said the two 19-year-olds overpowered her when she took them their dinner and slashed her throat. She suffered a slight wound.
The youths were identified as James Johnson, 19, Grand Island, and Harold Hoffman, 19, Doniphan. Johnson had been sentenced to 3 to 5 years in the Penitentiary for breaking and entering and burglary and Hoffman was still to be tried on those charges.
Authorities said Mrs. Wheeler apparently had not locked the outer door to the youths' cell when she entered the unlocked inner door. The two took her keys and escaped.

GAS WAR GOES INTO 2ND WEEK

Lincoln's gas war continued too rage over the weekend with prices of regular gasoline priced at 24.9 within the city and from 24.9 to 18.9 on Cornhusker Highway.
Ethyl prices in the city ranged between 26.9 and 28.9 and fell to as low as 23.9 on the highway Sunday.

Lincoln recorded the state's high temperature Sunday, a chilly 56. The over night low in the capital city was 29.

GOP Grosses $16,000; Demos Discount Speech

Democrats Sunday night poo-pooed Vice President Richard Nixon's optimistic predictions of a swift turn-about in the national Democratic trend and shrugged off his Lincoln appearance as of no political value to Nebraska Republicans.
Meanwhile, state GOP leaders were still buzzing about Nixon's enthusiastic reception at what some observers recalled as the largest, political fund-raising event in Lincoln history.
Plane Faulty
"Nearly 1,600 contributors paid $10 a plate to hear the vice president. Some 1,500 non-diners viewed the affair from the balcony at Pershing Municipal Auditorium."
Nebraska GOP leaders predicted that Nixon's appearance here will stir enthusiasm among Republicans and, most importantly, get them to the polls.
"That was cabin pressure trouble, not a shift in political wind pressure" that Nixon noted, Democratic State Chairman Russell Hanson of Newcastle said.
(Nixon's chartered Convair was flown to Omaha for repair of a failing cabin pressure system while the vice president spoke in Lincoln. It was at Municipal Airport when Nixon was ready to leave at 9:30 p.m.)
Poll Cited
Hanson referred to the most recent Gallup Poll which, he said, indicated that GOP popularity has steadily decreased for a year and a half, pointing to "the greatest Democratic sweep since 1936."
(The latest poll survey indicates a 58% Democratic trend across the nation.)
In reference to Nixon's Lincoln address, Hanson:
—Noted the "firm stand on foreign policy" had changed twice in a period of 24 hours 8 days ago with reference to Matsuo and Quemoy, and that President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles and Nixon on "almost parted company" the past week on its discussion.
—Said Nixon "admitted America has 6 million jobless" in announcing it has 65 million employed. The labor force amounts to 71 million, Hanson said.

Callan Shows Guarded Optimism As Final 1st District Drive Begins

(Editor's Note: This is the eleventh in a series of articles by The Star's political reporter, who is spending a day with each of the state's major candidates.)

By Don Walton
Likable, young Democrat Clair Callan presses into a final hectic campaign drive this week with the guarded optimism which springs from a job well-done.

He's been campaigning since April, being one of the few Democratic nominees who faced major trouble in the May primary election.

This time—Nov. 4—he faces two-term Republican Rep. Phil Weaver of Falls City, possessor of one of the best known names in Nebraska politics.

Chief Callan hope for an upset victory stems from the squeeze primary victory which Weaver pulled in May.

Its Meaning?
That close race might have indicated substantial anti-Weaver feeling in the district—or it may have just been a tribute to the vote-gathering potential of a new name in state politics, Carl Deitemeyer of Lincoln.

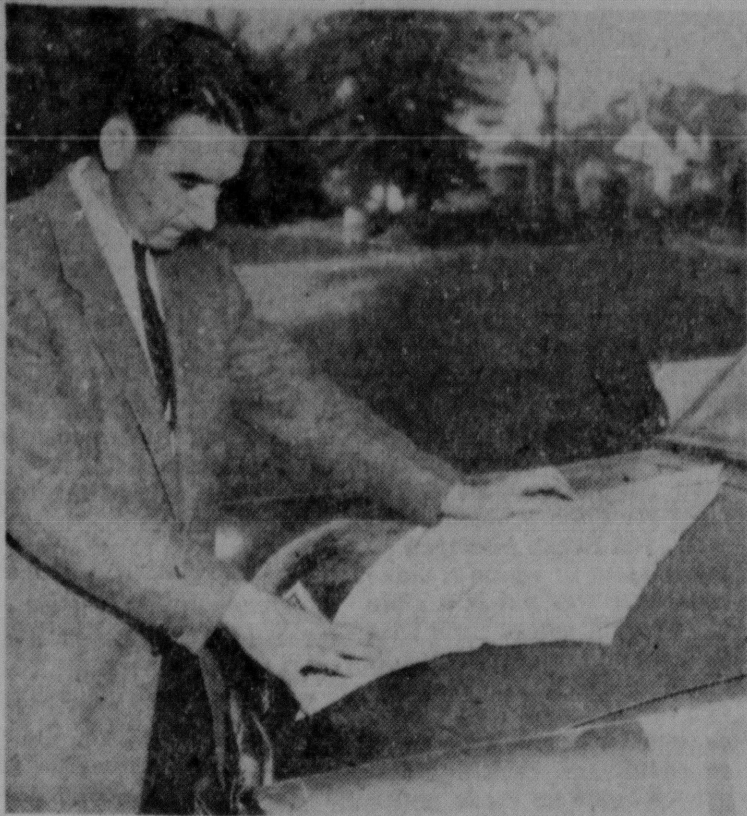

The first Tuesday in November may help answer that question.

Not content to rely on such dangerous and often inaccurate speculation, Callan, 38-year-old Odell hardware-implement-seed dealer, has been hard at the task of "selling" himself to First District voters.

First, came the necessary political preliminary: getting his name known to voters across the statewide 26-county district.

Farm Booklets
Fourteen thousand farm fact booklets were mailed to farm families, compliments of the candidate.

Thirty-one billboards went up to catch the eye of the Nebraska motorist.

Five thousand Callan eye-shades flooded county fairs.

Posters, brochures, cards, newspaper advertisements, radio and television spots overflowed the district.

And now, in a final drive on populous Lincoln, whose crucial vote-supplying potential could name the winner, Callan is distributing 30,000 4-page, newspaper-like campaign materials to Lincolnites.

Colorado To Iowa
Callan has traveled the district from far-off Dund y County on the Colorado border to Richardson on the Missouri River.

In a restless campaign entirely planned by the candidate, he has used his private though it may be necessary to reduce some government services to get the job done.

He stands for a commodity-by-commodity approach to the farm problem and is critical of "unrealistic" tenants of American foreign policy.

Here And There
Callan stops here and there in a tour of Main Streets in his district.

At Auburn, he ran into the brother of an old football buddy at Peru State Teachers College where Callan played blocking back in the single wing.

He chatted about mutual friends with a Republican car dealer, discussed farm machinery with a brother implement dealer and talked about the weather and business in general with a lady on the street.

A veteran of World War II naval service, owner of 1,200 acres of Gage County land and a breeder of Angus cattle, the bushy-haired young Democrat has long been active in Gage County school, civic, farm and political affairs.

With a final burst of campaign publicity and travel over the First District, he hopes to increase the area of his activities and move its base from tiny Odell (pop. 420) near the Kansas border to Washington.

Return To Africa

Burwell, Neb. — The Rev. Merle Stealy and his family will return to Nigeria, Africa, on Nov. 12 after filling a pastorate at Burwell the past 4 months. The pastor will resume his missionary post which he held for 5 years before returning to the U. S. in 1957.

Municipal Diesel Operators To Hold 7th Institute At NU

Approximately 60 superintendents and operators of Nebraska municipal diesel plants are expected to attend the seventh annual Diesel Operators Institute at the University of Nebraska Thursday and Friday.

The Institute, sponsored by the Utilities Section of the League of Nebraska Municipalities and the University Department of Mechanical Engineering and Extension Division, is designed to aid those men who are concerned with the operation and maintenance of diesel operated power plants.

Among the featured speakers will be:

D. W. Allen, district representative of the National Aluminate Corp., Omaha.

Lambert Blecha, manager, board of public works, Auburn.

Armour Boese, superintendent of light and power, Sidney.

Norbert Brugger, superintendent of light and power, Wayne.

Dr. Emerson Jones, special assistant to the general manager, Consumers Public Power District, Lincoln.

John P. Rossie, supervising engineer for R. W. Beck and Associates, Columbus.

A. D. Bogus, sales manager, industrial and oil field division, Young Radiator Co., Racine, Wis.

Frank Deluca, manager, service and application, American Bosch Arma Corp., Springfield, Mass.

John D. Elliott, engineer, Diesel Service Company, Ames, Ia.

Duane Franklin, manager of paint sales, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Nebraska's Mental Health Record Best in Nation

Governor Victor E. Anderson has sponsored a statewide mental health program which has reduced the patient load in mental hospitals by 390, making Nebraska's record best in the nation. This has been accomplished at the same time that two reductions in state taxes have been effected.

Roberts COTTAGE CHEESE

Serve it as an appetizer, salad, main dish or dessert. Roberts Cottage Cheese goes with everything . . . and everyone goes for Roberts Cottage Cheese. You'll like its creamy, tender texture; its richer, fresher, "full-cream" flavor. Test the taste. Compare the quality. Then be sure to always insist on Roberts — the cottage cheese that is so good, so many ways. Buy the large or small curd, in 12-ounce, one-pound, or two-pound cartons.

Cottage Cheese Salad (Molded)

1 tablespoon gelatine	1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/4 cup cold water	1/2 cup Roberts Cream
2 cups Roberts Cottage Cheese	1/2 cup sliced stuffed olives
1/4 teaspoon salt	Fresh spinach leaves & lettuce

Soak gelatine in cold water. Then dissolve over hot water. Combine remaining ingredients. Fold in gelatine. Pour into small ring-mold and chill until firm. Unmold. Place on bed of lettuce and spinach leaves. Place a small bowl of mayonnaise in center. Garnish with parsley.

ONE OF YOUR BEST FOOD BARGAINS!

Roberts Cottage Cheese is one of your most economical family foods — low in cost but high in nutritional value. Few other ready-to-eat foods are so inexpensive . . . so rich in protein and protective minerals.

Lure Of The Unknown

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Have you ever had a yen to go back through the years to some favorite period of history? Probably you have, but scientists are thinking of going back farther than anything you ever dreamed of. They want to go back, in a way, to the time when there were no Pacific or Atlantic Oceans and back even farther to the time, perhaps, when the earth was nothing but a barren planet covered with a layer of meteoric material.

There is more emphasis today on getting outside our own planet—going up and up until we reach the moon and other parts of the solar system. Outer space is the popular topic of conversation today and the most prominent foundation for science fiction. But a committee of the National Academy of Sciences has a different idea. It does not want to roam about in outer space. Instead, it wants to drill deep into the heart of the planet earth to see what makes it tick today and what started the clock in centuries past.

What the scientists want to do is get through the more than 30 miles thickness of the earth's outer crust, through the earth's second layer known as "Moho" and into the third layer known as the mantle. But going through the earth's granite crust would be an impossible job.

Therefore, the scientists hope to do their excavating on the ocean floor with advanced design oil-drilling rigs. The granite crust of the earth ends where the continental shelf drops off to nothing perhaps some three to four miles out at sea.

The scientists hope to start, then, where there really is no crust or at least a very thin one. The ocean floor would be examined through its entire 3,000-to-4,000-foot thickness. It is believed, according to the New York Times, that this oceanic floor harbors the history of the earth from time before the formation of the oceans.

And by going below the sediment of the ocean floor, the National Academy hopes to learn something of the origin of the earth. It is believed that the earth below this sediment under the ocean might have been formed at the same time the moon was bombarded into its present shape.

The Times reports on any number of significant and interesting things that might be discovered in these explorations, as yet of unknown cost but talked about at a figure of $20,000,000. Some insight, for instance, might be gained as to the surface of the moon if there is a layer of the earth which was formed about the same time and in the same manner as the moon.

Also, the ocean sediments have been explored only to a depth of some 100 feet to date. Deeper penetrations might reveal a history of evolution that would take us back many, many years farther than anything on which we have even speculated to date. Most of the basic division between plant and animal life was accomplished by the beginning of the Cambrian Period and that is as far back as evolution takes us today. But the ocean sediments are believed to contain much more ancient history than this.

A great deal remains to be done before this ambitious project becomes a reality but it is a fascinating object of speculation just the same. There will probably be those who will affirm that the whole affair is a big waste of money but it would be dreadful to see where we would be today if there had not been those strong souls who were eager to learn new facts without knowing exactly what they would be.

History Before History

People Out In Front?

The phenomenon of a full dress political campaign largely lacking the voting element is raising the anxious question of what has become of America's enthusiasm for democratic processes.

Nebraska is no exception. Thin crowds have welcomed the campaigners. In Minnesota a GOP caravan including the party's heaviest guns nationally descended on an outstate city for a monster rally and was greeted by eight citizens. Candidates in Iowa are largely having a hard time locating voters.

The Minneapolis Tribune has contributed a fresh thought in explaining this apathy. It said, "The people are ahead of the politicians."

It continued that the rank and file are not being impressed by the worn out charges that the Democrats are in league with the socialists or that the Republicans are the hirelings of Wall Street. They are thinking rather about the state of the nation in terms that count and will be heard from on election day.

That could well be. If there was campaign apathy in Maine, there was no apathy when the voters went to the polls. They gave their decision firmly and in abundant numbers. And they seemed to have a precise grasp on the real issues.

Such pieces of early evidence suggest that the Middlewest wait until the vote is counted in number and texture before it decides whether it needs to make an inquiry into voter apathy.

Residences, Titles And Salaries

It can safely be said that at least three of the constitutional amendments to be voted upon Nov. 4 are aimed at little else but better government. One of them, however, is confusing and raises questions as to what it will eventually result in. The questionable one is a proposed change to eliminate the requirement that members of boards or commissions which head executive departments reside at the seat of government—Lincoln.

The change, reportedly, is aimed to correct a situation on the Board of Health where all seven members are from Lincoln. This change may be advisable but the amendment might also open the door to the creation of more boards and commissions over executive departments which do not have them at this time. The requirement for Lincoln residence by such boards is at least a deterrent to the creation of new ones. The uncertain results of this change do not appear to be worth the single benefit it would be to the Board of Health.

An amendment with no known objections is one which would permit the Legislature to cancel unpaid taxes or assessments that have been held against real property for 15 years or more. In a practical sense, these taxes are uncollectable anyway but they may prevent a buyer from securing clear title to land on which they are assessed. The amendment represents good business, a convenience to the public and would not mean the loss of any revenue.

A third amendment, badly needed but perhaps a little more controversial, would double the present $872 a year salary of state legislators. The present limit was set in 1937 and does not even cover the expense of being a legislator today. It seems unfair to expect a man who is willing to devote his time and talents to affairs of government to also lose money while doing it. There are no known opponents to this measure and no strong reasoning against it.

Can't Go Along

It is ever difficult to differ with Fred Seaton, the Nebraskan who for six years has been the Republican administration's brightest and most lasting star and perhaps his party's best hope to lead it out of its own swamp in 1960.

But when as Secretary of the Interior he dutifully voiced his party's sentiments on reclamation even many of his friends must feel compelled to get off the band wagon.

Seaton here expressed concern that the federal government would usurp individual water rights issued by the states. He said, "I don't know anything more sacred than water rights" as he explained that the administration will go as far as it can to leave that matter to the states.

States rights is a shibboleth suffering from overuse and too convenient an expedient when a national administration can't dredge up a credible reason getting out of something for which it has no stomach. For instance, one never heard of the administration proposing to return the highway program to the state's because of the latter's sacred sovereignty. Nor was it in evidence when the administration pushed through a giveaway of the nation's off-shore oil reserves which actually were the joint property of the 48 states.

But even if the sacredness of states' rights can be better argued in the instance of reclamation and water rights, it is prudent to inquire whether it would lead from where the national policy now stands. It is a question in detail rather than in general.

The essence of the federal policy, existing since 1905 as laid down under the aegis of the Republican administration of Theodore Roosevelt, is that water rights are limited to the individual ownership of 160 acres. It also approves of the development of the great water resources under public direction, by public funds for the public interest.

When one examines the individual acreage limitation one sees clearly in it the wise provision against ultimate usurpation of the benefits of public endeavor by any powerful predatory minority. This is a dependable uniform guarantee which cannot be surely anticipated in event of state-by-state treatment.

It is also a fact that reclamation largely goes on in the 17 semi-arid states whose economies are not massive. There is no state commonwealth along the Columbia river that could have financed a Bonneville dam. Certainly North and South Dakota could never have built the Missouri Basin development, nor Nevada, a Hoover dam. Nor could it be within the realm of practical anticipation that the Dakotas would have administered the Missouri Basin development to the equal advantage of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri which had contributed nothing to the building although holding a common interest in the great river.

TR Was The Most Dynamic President

WASHINGTON — Several million words will be written about the 100th anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt's birth. I should like to write a few words about him from the point of view of my father-in-law, Col. Dan T. Moore, who was TR's cousin and military aide.

To my father-in-law and other members of the family who knew TR, he was one of the most dynamic and vigorous men ever to occupy the White House. He was vigorous in his exercise and vigorous in his decisions. Golfing was not in vogue in the U.S. then but if it had been Teddy Roosevelt would have scorned it. Boxing was his form of exercise. He had fixed up the top floor of the White House into a sort of gymnasium, and there used to box with Colonel Moore.

They traded some pretty tough blows—so tough that it weakened a nerve in Roosevelt's eye and later he lost his sight in one eye. He never told his military aide, however, and Colonel Moore only knew what had happened when, some time after Roosevelt left the White House, he read TR's explanation to newspapermen that "A young Army officer with a terrific punch damaged the optic nerve."

Roosevelt used to enjoy walking, and when he walked he walked in a beeline. Almost nothing deterred him. Only when he came to a tree, would he yield the right of way. For a thicket, a swamp or seemingly unpassable underbrush, never. My brother-in-law, Dan T. Moore, Jr., now living in Cleveland tells how, as a small boy, he tried to keep up with TR and his father in walking through a swamp-land, he lagged far behind.

Roosevelt Island, lying in the Potomac between the Key and Memorial Bridges, is named for the late President because he used to enjoy exploring it. But the story is not generally known how TR challenged Colonel Moore to swim to the island in mid-March when the river was still icy. Peeling down to their underwear, they reached the island, about 100 yards distant, but were so cold that they found a boat and rowed back. Picking up their clothes they put part of them on and tried to sneak back to the White House unseen.

MARQUIS CHILDS

New Day For Demos In Pacific Northwest

PORTLAND, Ore. — "Forget the party label. Forget that you're a Republican or a Democrat. We've got to unite all the people of Oregon."

The speaker is 36-year-old Mark Hatfield, the Republican candidate for governor and his words are a measure of the extraordinary transformation that has come over the Pacific Northwest. What has happened here should be a grisly lesson to Republicans everywhere looking to 1960 and contemplating the decay of the party organization.

This was one Republican territory as rockbound as Maine. Today all that is changed. The Democrats have 53,000 more registered voters than the Republicans out of a total of more than 800,000, a margin undreamed of 20 years ago.

Democratic incumbents are rated as almost certain to hold the three congressional seats they now have. Walter Norblad, the Republican in the fourth of Oregon's House seats is in danger. Neither of the two senators, Richard Neuberger and Wayne Morse, both Democrats, is up this year. In the neighboring state of Washington, the forecasts show that Sen. Henry M. Jackson will win by something like a landslide.

It is not to be wondered at, then, that Hatfield is making a strong non-party appeal. A former political science professor and dean of students who looks like the all-American egghead, Hatfield is pushing a resourceful campaign. He says the polls show him leading Gov. Robert D. Holmes, and he is confident that he will win even though he readily concedes that the Democratic majorities in the state legislature will be larger than ever. Elected to fill an unexpired two-year term, Holmes has been having familiar difficulties with the demand for more schools and highways and at the same time lower taxes. His backers believe that with the Democratic tide, he will be narrowly pulled in along with the others on his ticket.

Why should this transformation have occurred in what was once safe Republican territory. There are many answers, but two—one immediate and one long-range—seem to be most relevant.

Dependent on lumber, agriculture and minerals and, in Washington, the aircraft industry, the Pacific Northwest felt only a faint breath of the Eisenhower prosperity. The recession hit hard and there are still pockets of unemployment. The Democrats blame the Eisenhower administration for stopping the New Deal public power program which they insist is essential to a state still in the first phases of industrial development. Gov. Holmes has wired the Federal Reserve Board protesting the newest hike in interest rates as likely to damp down the housing industry again, and housing is vital to Oregon, with 65 percent of payrolls in forest products.

But what has long-term significance is the fact that there is virtually no Republican grassroots organization. As it is put by Hatfield, a realist in the style of Richard Nixon with whom his Republican admirers compare him, the big boys in the party thought you could buy a victory with billboards and television time.

In 1956, putting Douglas McKay against Wayne Morse, the "fat cats" went all out and more money was spent in Oregon than in any of the states except California and New York. McKay was decisively defeated, and this year the rich Republicans are sitting on their pocketbooks while Hatfield conducts a do-it-yourself campaign.

Wonders Of The Universe

Waking up is a crucial event for a person in a state of weightlessness. Among the peculiar sensations he will experience will be the feeling that his arms and legs are floating away.

Have you ever awakened in a hotel room and found yourself confused by the unfamiliar surroundings? If so, you'll appreciate what a space traveler will experience when he wakes up from sleep to find himself not only in new surroundings but also in a fantastic condition of weightlessness.

Confusion won't be the word for it. Lt. Col. David G. Simons, who fell asleep and then woke up during a record-breaking balloon ascent into the stratosphere, reported he was more than confused; he was completely disoriented. Colonel Simons' report made Dr. Harold J. von Beckh, assistant chief of space biology at the Holloman Air Force Base, go right after the problem.

Dr. von Beckh arranged an experiment in which a plane passenger was put in a state of weightlessness while asleep and then awakened in the middle of it. The passenger's arms and legs were equipped with small electrodes so continuous electrocardiographs could be made under conditions of both acceleration and weightlessness.

He was placed within a fast jet plane, isolated from oral communication with the pilot, after having been kept awake for 48 hours and then fed a heavy breakfast to make him drowsy. A thin cord was fastened to his arm so the pilot could awaken him at the proper moment.

The pilot took off smoothly and carefully and, once at the proper altitude, kept the plane on a level flight. When the passenger went to sleep, the F-94C then swung gently into a Keplerian trajectory which would just balance the force of gravity and make the plane weightless.

When accurate gravity meters registered zero, the pilot tugged the cord and awakened the passenger.

Both the movie camera and a tape recorder showed how completely disoriented the passenger was. He suffered a peculiar sensation that his arms and legs were floating away and made awkward efforts to bring them back.

When the acceleration equalled five G's the subject blacked out and at six G's he lost consciousness. A variation of the experiment, in which the subject went through the weightless period first and was then accelerated at high speed, showed that he would black out at three G's and lose consciousness at four G's.

Cardiographs of the subject demonstrated that acceleration induced a faster heart beat, and that the higher the initial acceleration the longer it took the heart to return to normal. There was also another problem — eating and drinking.

Water in an ordinary drinking glass was out of the question; it formed in large drops (because the only force acting on it was surface tension) and floated around in the plane. Water in a squeeze bottle could be managed, but initially the subject had difficulty in finding his mouth.

The food, in the form of candy, proved hard to manage, again because movement was disoriented.

These are the experiments which must be pursued to give a human being a chance to survive in the alien and unfriendly environment we call space.

Assistance Needs

Lincoln, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The state assistance department is asking for more money for the next two years. The county assistance department says it is making a savings each month. They should, because in my opinion, they are not visiting the sick and aged or tending to their needs as they should.

BEN KECK

The Wheel Tax

Lincoln, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: As most people know, the proposed wheel tax will be a new and additional tax on Lincolniters. It most certainly will not be a replacement tax for any of the existing city taxes.

This new tax when once approved by the city voters will probably remain in full force and effect henceforth and forevermore. Also, the proposed rates are subject to revision and change, and may be raised by any future City Council in such sums as they decide are needed.

In Chicago the wheel tax was initiated with a $5 charge or tax on passenger cars. Since that time it has been raised and raised until the present tax is now $22 a year.

LEO N. BARTUNEK

Negative Leadership

Lincoln, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: In recent months "The People Speak" columns have carried repeated letters on the subject of the vehicle tax from a limited number of people challenging the effectiveness of the leadership in this community. Actually, Lincoln is enjoying a period of excellent municipal government, a period in which much progress has been made toward solving the multitude of problems that go along with our rapid rate of growth. With Lincoln's population increase of more than 25 per cent in the last eight years, the wonder is that our city leadership has been able to provide improved services rather than see them deteriorate.

Even if the criticisms which have been carelessly directed against any and all persons in public office were valid, those who have appointed themselves as critics have offered no substitute of sound leadership and constructive thinking toward the solution of the many problems still facing our community.

In the detailed and conservative street program as outlined in the 11-year improvement plan, Mayor Martin has given us a solid base to work from. This, together with the comprehensive plan for financing the improvements, including a portion of the money to be raised by a vehicle tax, makes an overall program that is fair and just to all citizens of the city. Having an opportunity to vote Tuesday, November 4, on the vehicle tax, Lincoln citizens are provided a chance to express their confidence in the present leadership by overwhelmingly endorsing the vehicle tax ordinance. A defeat of this program will not save automobile owners money. Instead, it will cost many times the tax in direct car expenses if the improvement program is delayed or defeated. More important than that is an indirect cost that would be imposed by the defeat of the vehicle tax. This cost is brought on through the implied endorsement of the negative leadership exhibited by those who oppose this vehicle tax. A vote for the ordinance endorses efforts by Lincoln's officials to make this a better community in which to work and a more attractive city for new industry and new enterprise.

The individual welfare of every citizen depends upon the acceptance and endorsement of effective leadership. No substitute for this leadership has been offered or is in sight. I hope all thinking Lincolniters will join me in voting for the vehicle tax.

JOHN M. CAMPBELL

Strength In Numbers

Lincoln, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I wish to clarify the position of the Citizens' Committee and to eliminate any confusion with groups that infringe upon the name with completely opposite objectives in mind. The Citizens' Committee is a registered trade name and the sole aim is to preserve the fundamental rights of the people.

At the present there is a committee supporting the wheel tax that feels petition rights should be sacrificed for a program forced upon the people by the creation of a street condition which they must convince the people is the only remedy.

If the wheel tax should succeed, what next? Instead of enforcing Ordinance 6500 which is sufficient to clean up undesirable housing, will conditions be allowed to go on so they can get urban renewal? A precedent has been set and unless people open their eyes and see the sacrifices of both personal and property rights for progress, no one will be able to call their home their own.

Candidates Portschke and Liebers tried to put the city in the real estate business with LB 431 at the home owners' expense of the rights I have mentioned. These rights the Citizens' Committee will try to preserve. We have our strength in numbers where those who are trying to exploit the people have strength in their wealth and are trying to increase it.

C. O. BLANCHARD

Bingo Issue

Lincoln, Neb.

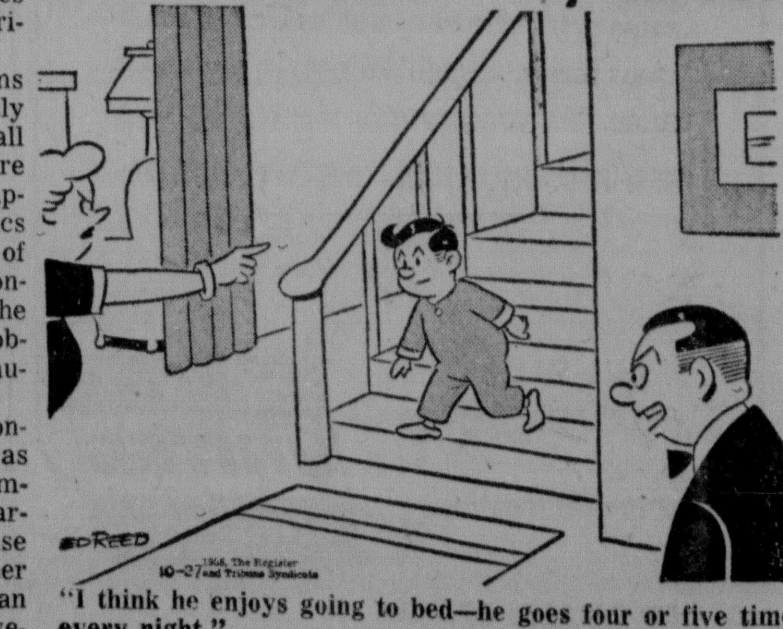

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: In a meeting of the College View Church Board of Seventh-Day Adventists held October 13, it was unanimously voted that the church place itself on record as being opposed to the so-called "Bingo Amendment" which will be voted on in Nebraska on November 4.

We wish to congratulate the Methodist Church and some of the Lutheran group for coming out forthrightly in this issue which we consider to be important morally.

Being myself a native of the state of Nevada and having served as a pastor in the city of Reno, I can testify to the truth of Bishop Watts' statement appearing in The Lincoln Star of October 13 to the effect that gambling is a moral disease. This fact remains regardless of who is operating the activity.

On My Own

By Eleanor Roosevelt

(This is the sixth of a series of twelve articles based on the book "On My Own—The Years Since the White House," by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, published by Harper & Brothers, New York.)

During my years at the United Nations it was my work on the Human Rights Commission that I considered my most important task, though, as I have explained, I was also a delegate to the General Assembly, which at times, when the jobs more or less fused, caused some confusion.

As we began our work, the Russian representative designated for the task was Mr. Borisov, but he did not arrive. Instead there appeared a rather young gentleman sent by the Russian Embassy in Washington.

"Mr. Borisov will be here later," he explained. "Meanwhile, I will attend the sessions to listen but I do not have any authorization to cast a vote."

Our early debates were lively, but I noted that the young Russian sat quietly by and gave an impression of docility and even timidity.

Please Explain Again

As the time neared to vote approval of our preliminary actions Mr. Borisov arrived, and our quiet little man disappeared. Mr. Borisov approached me before the next meeting.

"Mrs. Roosevelt," he said, "I have not been able to attend and I would like to ask you, as chairman, to explain to me the actions on which the commission has decided informally."

I said I would be delighted and carefully outlined the proposals which had been discussed. When I had finished, everything I had said was translated into Russian for Mr. Borisov. He looked thoughtful for a few moments and then shook his head.

"I am sorry," he said, "but I do not believe I clearly understand your plans. Would you mind explaining to me again?"

I said that of course I would not mind. So I went over the entire proceedings again, explaining as simply as possible what had gone on during Mr. Borisov's absence. Again it was all translated into Russian but again Mr. Borisov shook his head sadly.

"I really don't quite understand," he said. "Would you mind starting again at the beginning?"

After we had gone over it in the same way once more, Mr. Borisov was still frowning thoughtfully. "It is not entirely clear," he announced gravely. "Therefore I will not vote."

'Enforced By The State'

Very early in the meetings of the commission we discovered that while it would be possible to reach some kind of agreement on the Declaration, we were going to be in for a great deal of controversy with the Russian representatives, particularly Mr. Pavlov, who attempted at every opportunity to write a bit of Communist philosophy into the document. For example, at the end of practically every article the Russians proposed to amend the Declaration to read: "This shall be enforced by the state."

When such an amendment was proposed I, or one of the other Western delegates, would argue against it on the ground that this was an international declaration by the United Nations and that we did not believe it should be imposed by the power of the individual governments. We would then ask for a vote and the amendment would be defeated.

But as soon as the next article was completed the Soviet delegate would again propose the same amendment and we would have to go through the whole business again with the same result—the defeat of the Soviet proposal. This naturally became monotonous but the Russians never gave up trying.

Plans For Christmas

Late in 1947 it was decided that the next meeting of the Human Rights Commission would be in Geneva, so we left for that city early in December with the idea of completing our work in time to be home for Christmas. As chairman, I knew that it would require much hard work and long hours to be able to adjourn before Christmas but I was in a determined mood and I warned all the delegations of my plans. Unfortunately, when we arrived at Shannon airport in Ireland we were told that we could not continue because of heavy fog.

"We simply must go on," I exclaimed. "Here I have been telling everybody we would keep a tight schedule and now I—the chairman—won't even get there for the opening session!"

After three days the fog lifted and we continued to Geneva, where I discovered that all the other delegates also had been delayed because of heavy fog all over Europe. Although I was happy to make the opening meeting, I resented the delay and immediately laid out a schedule of work that, with night sessions, I believed would enable us to adjourn by eleven o'clock on the evening of December 17.

"I want to be home for Christmas and I assume everyone else does, too," I announced at our first session. "In fact, I have made reservations and I hope to keep them. If we work night sessions from the beginning instead of waiting until the last week as usual, we should get through in time."

This was a rather gruelling schedule for everybody and within a few days I was being denounced—mostly in fun, I hope—as a merciless slave driver. But I must say we got through a great deal of work and kept to our schedule, for which I was grateful to all the delegations. Only once did I encounter any real revolt and that was the fault of the Russians, but it was their fault only in a pleasant way.

The Perils Of Vodka

As we neared the end of our sessions, the Russian delegation invited everybody to a cocktail party following the afternoon meeting. I could not attend nor could the Philippines representative, Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, because both of us had previous engagements to speak at dinners. We expressed our regrets and everybody else trotted off to the Russian party where, I was later informed, there was available a considerable quantity of vodka.

I made my dinner speech and lost little time in finishing my meal so I could be sure to get back to the meeting room by eight o'clock. I had worked hard to train all the delegates to be on time and I did not want to set a bad example at this late stage. When I arrived a few minutes before eight there was no one there, but promptly on the hour General Romulo arrived and we sat at the big table in the big empty room and chatted. Ten minutes later, I realized that absolutely no other delegate, adviser, secretary or whatever had arrived. Another ten minutes passed and General Romulo and I were still alone at the big table. This was, I thought, no less than mutiny!

The Lost Sheep

At eight-thirty there was a commotion at the door and the lost sheep began arriving. They were in a happy if unhurried mood and, I observe, a little shaky on their feet. They took their accustomed places, leaned back in their chairs and gazed at me with pleased, rather foggy eyes. They were, as one of the younger members of our party put it later, loaded!

I knew when to acknowledge that the Russians had me licked.

"The meeting," I exclaimed banging the gavel on the table, "is adjourned until tomorrow morning!"

Despite the plentitude of vodka, we kept to our schedule thereafter and we did end our work at eleven o'clock on the evening I had originally designated. I said Merry Christmas and good-by to everyone. In the corridor I was overtaken by Alexander E. Bogomoloff, the Soviet delegate, who was then also their ambassador to Paris. Madame Bogomoloff had acted as his translator throughout the sessions and had also translated for the delegate of one of the other Communist countries.

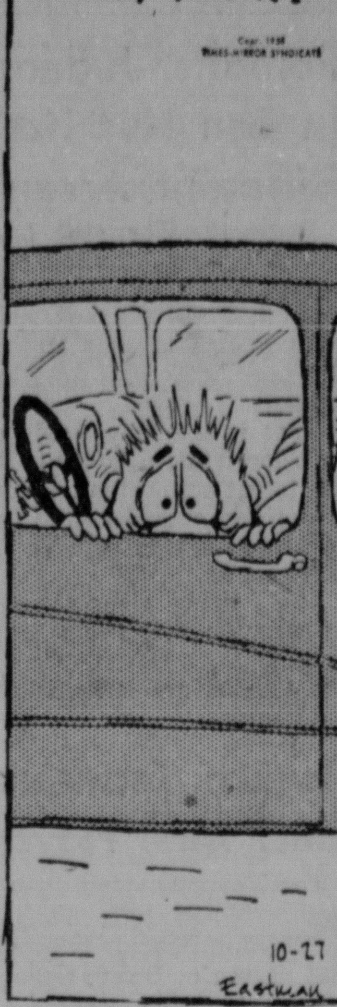

"Madame," Mr. Bogomoloff said to me as we walked down the corridor, "I have never worked so hard at any international conference and my wife is nearly dead!"

"I can quite understand that your wife is exhausted," I replied. "But I am glad that you have discovered that even in a bourgeois democracy, as you insist on calling the United States, some of us know how to work."

The Soviet delegate laughed heartily and we parted. And all of us, I hope, reached home in time for Christmas.

DELAPLANE'S

From a warm hotel room in Los Angeles: The weather outside was a damp 104 degrees.

The City of Angels is a patriotic metropolis. It claims the best weather in the world and the sunshine of Nature's smile. But when outrageous days like this come along, they face it bravely.

Hottest Day on Record," said the Los Angeles journals.

There were some hot weather pictures. Girls frying eggs on the hood of a car. Zoo monkeys clambering on a cake of ice. Girls at the beach splashing themselves with water. A policeman mopping his steamy forehead.

I looked over all this art in my hotel room—scantly clad, as we journalists say in our poetic way.

"Everybody talks about the weather. But nobody does anything about it," says the quotation.

This is not exactly true. WE do something about it. We take pictures of it. And if you will excuse a wistful memory—

When I was molding public opinion for the dailies—Honest Abe, the infinitive splitter, they called me. When I was chopping verbs and adjectives, I made many excursions for hot weather pictures.

It was on one of these warm junkets I got an idea for the cat on the hot tin roof.

I will say the cameraman was against it. "Why'n't we just get a cake of ice and throw it to the polar bear?" he demanded. "That's a good hot weather picture. It always has been."

"Because we should get something different," I said. "My idea is we show a cat on a hot tin roof. Get the idea?"

I had in mind a cat walking on this hot tin roof and blowing on his paws.

You would be surprised how unco-operative cats are. When you do not want a cat, they are all over the place. But when you are looking for them, they are off at a convention.

It took several hours. At times we dropped into neighborhood bistros for a short beer and information.

"If you'da been here last week," they said. "There was a tomcat the size of a mountain lion."

We finally located a cat. He was no bargain but a cat anyway. At this point we were in a location where there wasn't a tin roof within miles. "We'll try him on the hood of a car," I said, desperately. I went over to a corner grocery and bought a can of sardines and opened them. Then I got on the other side of the car and waved a sardine. The cameraman put the cat on the car and stepped back to grab his camera.

Wow! I will tell you it would have made quite a picture. This cat just touched down once on the car hood. He bounced and lit running.

A lady came out of the house and said she would call the police if we kept fooling around with her car.

I ate a couple of the sardines myself and threw the rest in the gutter.

On the way in, we took a picture of a boy selling home-made lempopade.

The editor was mighty disgusted. What took us so long? (That is a question editors are always asking.)

I tried to explain how I had worked out a new angle on hot weather pictures. Which would have worked if the cat had been a co-operator.

"That is the silliest idea you have come up with in a long time," he said. "Why, I can think of hundreds of better hot weather pictures."

"Like what?"

"Do I have to do all the thinking around here?" he said. "You could take a picture of a girl at the beach. Splashing herself with water. Or a polar bear on a cake of ice. Or maybe one of the traffic cops. He is pulling out his handkerchief and wiping his forehead."

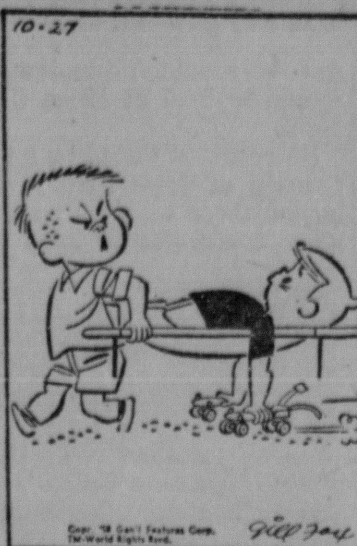

"You gotta be aggressive," said the editor. "And original."

This is a true story. Only the pictures have been changed to protect the innocent.

Tiny Plane Completes Globe-Circling Flight—42 Days Late

New York (AP) — Capt. Charles F. Bame Jr., Sunday completed a round-the-world solo flight in a single engine plane. He had hoped to do the job in 8 days. It took 50.

"Boy, am I glad to be back," said the 39-year-old flier from Palo Alto, Calif., as he climbed wearily from the orange and black plane into a cold, drenching rain at Idlewild airport.

He landed here from Chicago on the last leg of the 22,000-mile flight.

Like Bygone Era

Bame's flight was reminiscent of the early days of aviation, when hardy pilots fought weather or the idiosyncracies of their machines along almost every mile of their journey.

His aspiration of circling the globe in little more than a week went out the window almost at the beginning.

He left Idlewild in a Mooney Mite aircraft on Sept. 6 and headed non-stop for Rome, 4,312 miles away. But 20 hours later, his fuel pump acted up and forced him down in a vineyard on Corsica, French island in the Mediterranean where Napoleon was born. He was 250 miles short of his goal.

Limped On

There were reports then that Bame was giving up. But he didn't and limped on to Rome Sept. 10. Four days later, he took off but was forced by engine trouble to turn back. He tried again and this time made Athens before being forced down.

Bame's 8-day around-the-world deadline had already run out on him.

He left Athens Sept. 15. But again and again engine trouble halted him — at Beirut, Sharjah, Karachi, Calcutta, Bangkok and Hong Kong.

Finally, on Oct. 14, Bame reached Tokyo.

Tokyo To Miami

Two days later, he left Tokyo on the most ambitious leg of his journey. He hoped to fly non-stop 7,022 miles to Miami, Fla., which would have broken all non-stop records for a single-engine plane.

Over the vast, lonely reaches of the North Pacific, Bame fought against his malfunctioning engine and against fog and ice. Finally, 29½ hours and 3,270 miles from Tokyo, he was forced to land at Cordova, Alaska, the night of Oct. 17.

Bame left Cordova Oct. 20, hopeful of flying non-stop to New York. But again weather and his balky engine thwarted him, forcing him down at Yakutat and Juneau, Alaska, and at Seattle, Wash.

14th Emergency

On Oct. 23, Bame left Seattle, only to be turned back to his 14th emergency landing by renewed engine trouble. A few hours later, he was in the air again, headed for Chicago.

However, the next night it became so cloudy he couldn't

One Of Her 465 Horses

Mrs. Myrtle Koch, Palmyra, holds one of the 465 horses from her collection. Mrs. Koch covered this particular horse herself, using real horsehide. In the background are some of the shelves which hold her collection. (Star Staff Photo.)

Horse Collecting Leads To More Horsy Hobbies

By David Clark
Palmyra, Neb. — It takes a heap of doing to get 465 horses under one roof, but Mrs. Myrtle Koch of Palmyra has done it.

But she knows a trick: be sure the horses are no more than a foot tall.

Mrs. Koch has been collecting the little equine statues for more than 10 years. Friends and relatives have sent horses from all over the world, including Germany, Japan and the Netherlands. Mrs. Koch has added to her collection during trips around this country and she even dug up a small iron horse in her garden.

Kids Flock To Cases

"I've always been crazy over horses," she said, "but I couldn't afford to buy one."

Mrs. Koch's collection is popular with Palmyra small fry.

"Sometimes one youngster will see them and then he'll bring in a whole bunch of kids with him," she said. She has the smaller members of her collection glued down in their cases to prevent breakage through mishandling.

The horses range in height from one inch to 16 inches and in value from 10 cents to $25.

Mrs. Koch's affinity for horses shows up in another hobby, painting. Throughout her home, which is in the old Oakley Store, one of the first buildings in Palmyra, she has hung more than a dozen paintings of horses.

She took up this latest hobby 2 years ago when her son, Richard, who operates a hobby shop in Lincoln, gave her a set of paints.

"I love to smear 'em," she said. "I've got a whole batch to do if I ever get time to work on them."

Leather Worker

A third hobby which takes much of her spare time is leather-working. She picked this one up from her son, and has done purses, billfolds, belts, doll boots and jackets, and a two-gun holster.

"There's not too much outlet for anything that expensive," she said in explaining that she doesn't do much work for sale.

Since the Kochs moved into the old store which was converted into a duplex three years ago, they have been busy finishing the rooms and making the place liveable. But Mrs. Koch still has found time to devote to a fourth hobby, raising flowers. She raises roses, lilies, irises, tulips and others.

"She raises a little of everything, just as long as it's red," her husband said.

Farm Policies Made Issue By McGinley

Hastings, Neb. — "The parity figure for farm prices is at the same level as in the late 1930's and the prospect for the future is for even lower prices," Don McGinley said Sunday.

"Despite this situation, my opponent says the farm situation is not an issue in this campaign. And Secretary of Agriculture Benson says the farmer never had it so good," he said.

McGinley, seeking to unseat A. L. Miller for the Fourth Congressional District seat, accused the secretary of agriculture of "disloyalty to his cabinet position and to the welfare of those he should represent."

"Benson warned Nebraskans during his recent visit not to overproduce livestock but at the same time advised them to feed the grain to get rid of it," he said.

McGinley said the farmer is not receiving his fair share of the national income and that the Benson policies are making the prospects even worse.

Northeast Debate Teams Break Even

Each of two Lincoln Northeast High debate teams, which went to Kansas City, Mo. this weekend for the Rockhurst High School Tournaments, won two and lost two rounds of debate.

Romans, Judeans In Ben Hur Have Different Accents

Rome (AP) — When the latest movie version of "Ben Hur" comes out, it will be no accident that the Romans speak with British accents and the Judeans speak with American accents.

That is the way American director William Wyler is trying to get across the idea that two different nationalities are involved in this epic of Ancient Rome.

The casting gives the role of hero Ben Hur to an American, Charles Heston. Most of the villains are Britons—that is, Romans.

MUCH OF RECESSION'S DECLINE NOW RECOVERED

Washington (AP) — Most of the recession's decline in national income has been recovered, the Commerce Department reported Sunday.

National income rose $1,800,000,000 in the second quarter to an annual rate of 352½ billion, the department said. It added that a more substantial increase was registered in the third quarter.

The third quarter figure isn't available yet because July-September corporate profits haven't been computed. Profits are known to have improved significantly, however.

Down $11 Billion

In the April-June quarter, the report said, corporate profits rose $1,200,000,000 to an annual rate of 32½ billions.

Rep. Simpson Dies; Already On Ballot

Pittsfield, Ill. (AP) — Rep. Sid Simpson (R-Ill.) died Sunday, apparently of a heart seizure, moments after he finished dedicating a new hospital wing.

Simpson, 64, was completing his 7th term as a Republican House member from Illinois.

He spoke without apparent signs of distress during a ceremony dedicating a new wing at Illini community hospital. But a few moments later, he slumped in his chair.

The veteran central Illinois Republican leader lived in Carrollton where he was born. He was a charter member of the American Legion.

Simpson was considered a shoe-in for another term in Congress at the Nov. 4 election.

The Republican congressman's death 10 days before election left the prospect that his name will remain on the ballots which have already been printed.

GOP party leaders were expected to move swiftly in selecting a substitute candidate.

Summer Accident Victims File Suits

Damage suits totaling $200,500.50 were filed in Lancaster County District Court by Gerald J. and Connie R. Czarnick against Kenneth W. Pester and his parents, Francis and Wendell R. Pester.

The suit alleges that the Czarnicks were passengers July 10th in a car driven by Kenneth Pester and owned by his parents when it was in collision with another due to negligence of Pester.

Czarnick is suing for $102,650.25 as a result of the accident. His wife is asking for a settlement of $97,850.25.

HURRY—HURRY!

Varsity

"Hi, Partners!"

Throughout Nebraska, hundreds of boys and girls from the upper elementary and junior high school grades perform an outstanding service in helping their schoolmates avoid street traffic accidents. They form school safety patrols and take their posts at busy street crossings to help direct traffic.

These junior patrolmen are at their posts fifteen minutes before school opens and are on duty after school closes until pupils have passed their corners. Day after day, in all kinds of weather, these boys and girls serve their schoolmates and help save lives, and their efforts have been a large factor in reducing fatal accidents involving child pedestrians in the 5-14 age group.

The Nebraska Trucking Industry salutes these patrol members. Like them, the industry is doing its utmost to promote safety on our streets and highways. So, to you boys and girls helping direct traffic at the busy corners, we say, "Hi, Partner! We're with you."

Man May Actually See Beginning Of Time

Pasadena, Calif. (AP)—With in two to 4 years man may be able to see back to the beginning of time.

Or at least back to the days when the universe was very young.

Astronomers of the Palomar-Mount Wilson observatories believe that improved seeing conditions out in space will make this possible.

The 200-inch Hale telescope atop Palomar mountain has taken photographs of stars 10 billion light years away. That means, the light that made the photograph left a distant star 10 billion years ago.

Dr. Allan R. Sandage of the observatory staff said in a report released by the sponsoring California Institute of Technology that the latest estimates of the age of the universe range from 7 to 13 billion years.

Any improvement of visibility would take astronomers—who already can see 10 billion years into the past—very close if not right up to the actual birth of the universe.

The Hale telescope's vision has been limited almost from the beginning of its operation 10 years ago by something called "night glow." This is caused by particles shot out of the sun and caught in the earth's magnetic field. They glow high in the upper atmosphere at night, blanking out light from objects at the dim edge of the visible universe.

The sun is still at the peak of its current sunspot cycle. These cycles last roughly about 11 years. In the next two to 4 years this is expected to subside and there will be fewer solar outbursts to disturb the night sky. Astronomers will be able to see farther out into space and time than they have ever seen before.

Dr. Sandage says the large variation in estimates of the age of the universe is due to uncertainties that still exist in measurements.

Consistent
"However," he says, "the figures are significant because for the first time they are consistent with the age set by geologists based on the decay of radioactive elements. Actually photographing light from ancient stars does not mean a lot to astronomers. They can't tell much from a pinpoint of light on a photograph.

Their best information about stars comes from spectrographs, pictures which break up light rays and show what the stars are made of. At present spectrographs have been taken of stars two billion light years away.

"I would like to go out a factor of two to 4 beyond this distance," says Sandage.

There is some hope that the end of the sunspot cycle may allow astronomers to approach this goal. Spectrographs of the early days of the universe—perhaps even its birth—could answer one of the oldest questions in the mind of man: How did it all begin?

The improvement in seeing at the end of the sunspot cycle may have an even further-reaching effect. It may help determine whether the universe is re-born every few billion years.

Always Growing
Linked with the size and age of the universe is its apparent expansion. A widely held theory is that the known universe was born in a cataclysmic explosion and that gigantic fragments have evolved into galaxies—clusters of billions of stars—which have been rushing away from each other ever since.

"Recently we have found indications that the rate at which the galaxies are moving apart is slowing down," says Dr. Sandage. He believes this is due to the braking effect of the combined forces of gravity of all the matter in the universe.

"If this is true, gravity will eventually overcome momentum," he says. "Then galaxies will begin moving toward each other. Eventually they will rush together and perhaps the heat generated by their colliding will touch off another tremendous explosion and we will have an expanding universe again."

Moscow Calls For Erasing Word 'Drunk'

London (UPI)—Radio Moscow said in a home broadcast that the word "drunk" must and will be erased from the Russian vocabulary.

The broadcast followed up recent pronouncements by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev against the evils of heavy drinking.

The radio said the word "drunk" is incompatible with the notion of "Soviet man."

It said the government was "working on a bill under whose terms drunkards, and those who foster drunkenness, will incur severe penalties."

"The Soviet people will undoubtedly approve this measure," The broadcast said.

Paris History Professor To Lecture Friday

A French historian and scholarly writer will give two lectures Friday at the University of Nebraska.

He is professor de Bertier de Sauvigny, professor of modern history at Catholic University of Paris.

Father de Sauvigny will speak in English on "Contemporary France" at 11 a.m. in Love Memorial auditorium, and at 3 p.m., in French, in the Department of Romance Languages.

The French historian is editor of a French review. Among his major books are: "Le Comte Ferdinand de Bertier et l'ennemi de la congrégation," published in 1949, and "La restauration en France, 1815-30," published recently. He has also contributed to several works in French history.

Father de Sauvigny is a frequent visitor in the United States and has an excellent knowledge of English. He is at present a visiting professor of history at Notre Dame University.

In addition to his writings, Father de Sauvigny lectures frequently on France, and he has participated in various historical conferences.

His visit to the University is sponsored by the departments of history and of romance languages and the University Convocations Committee.

Widow Denies Intent To Marry

London (AP)—Mrs. John Cohn, widow of Columbia Pictures head Harry Cohn, denied a published report she intends to marry Harry Karl, former husband of actress Marie McDonald.

"I have no intention of marrying," Mrs. Cohn told a reporter in response to an inquiry. "My husband has been dead only 8½ months and marrying now is farthest from my mind."

Karl, she added, is an "old and good friend of mine and my husband's. I've gone out with him a great deal."

'Judge Not' Parish Told Of Pastor's 'Indiscretion'

Oakland, Calif. (AP)—The congregation of the First Baptist Church whose absent pastor, the Rev. Ronald E. Adams, admitted last week he had been found in bed with a former prostitute was told Sunday—"judge not, that ye be not judged."

Several women among the 822 parishioners were in tears as the substitute minister, the Rev. Ralph M. Johnson, said there is no need to ask forgiveness for the handsome 36-year-old minister.

"You have love, one for the other. Where there is love, forgiveness comes without asking," said the Rev. Johnson, president of the Berkeley Baptist Divinity School.

While admitting that "events have affected his leadership potential," the Rev. Mr. Johnson said the good done by Mr. Adams, for more than 3 years head of the church, "has not been undone."

He said the pastor's "self-condemnation will be greater than anything you or I could add."

Photographed

Dr. Adams went to the Alameda County district attorney's office earlier and told officials that two men had emerged from a bedroom closet and photographed him in bed with a woman parishioner in an alleged extortion plot. Then he went into seclusion with his wife and 3 children.

Norman M. Green, chairman of the church's executive board, read a prepared statement to the congregation Sunday recounting what the pastor called his "moment of indiscretion."

He said Dr. Adams met him at his home Thursday, admitted being found in bed with

The Corbins Greet Their Guests

The Lincoln Air Force Base extended a greeting of appreciation to a Lincoln guest list on Sunday afternoon when Col. and Mrs. Thomas Corbin were a host and hostess at the Officers Club.

The guests, including some of the Air Force personnel, but mainly from Lincoln, were invited for a 5 o'clock hors d'oeuvres party which was followed by dinner.

In the picture are (from the left), Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sands, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Harder and Col. and Mrs. Corbin.

Morning Ceremony

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Ann Trant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Trant of Cambridge, and S. Sgt. Donald R. Perkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Perkins of Marseilles, Ill., took place on Saturday morning, Oct. 25, at St. John's Church in Cambridge. All-white chrysanthemums formed the background for the 9:30 o'clock service, which was solemnized by the Rev. Thomas Sullivan, chaplain of St. Katherine's Hospital at McCook.

The maid of honor and bride's only attendant was Miss Corrine Williams of Lincoln who wore a sheath frock of cotton blue silk accented by a full overskirt of net. Her feathered cap was veiled with blue illusion and she carried a blue Chantilly lace fan ornamented with white carnations.

William Barry of Lincoln served Sgt. Perkins as best man, and seating the guests were S. Sgt. Gene Craighead and A. 1c Gene Lewandowski of the Lincoln Air Force Base.

The bride's period gown was fashioned of white, imported Chantilly lace. Scallops of the lace dotted with iridescent sequins edged the portrait neckline of the sculptured bodice, which was completed by long sleeves, and the scallop motif was repeated at the danseuse-length hem of the wide skirt. She wore an imported mantilla veil of Chantilly lace and carried a lace fan clustered with pink rosebuds.

Upon their return from a wedding trip to eastern states, Sgt. and Mrs. Perkins will make their home at 1742 K in Lincoln, where the bridegroom is stationed at the Air Force Base. The bride is a graduate of St. Elizabeth Hospital School of Nursing.

Dear Abby . . .

The New Look?

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I think you could have done better with your answer to that sales lady who objected to women shoppers saying, "That's not what I had in mind." For about a year I have been looking for a dress, and let me tell you, what I have been shown is certainly NOT what I had in mind. Who started these sacks, trapeze and chemise type dresses anyway? Men who hated women, that's who! Is it our fault that there is nothing around but these crazy styles? I am five feet six and weigh 130 pounds and I can not wear them. Thanks for letting me blow off some steam. Now I feel better.

WEARING LAST YEAR'S CLOTHES

DEAR WEARING: Shake hands with somebody else who is also wearing last year's clothes. I am five feet nothing, weigh 105 and I can not wear 'em, either. The first sharp designer who comes out with an old-fashioned type dress that fits all over is going to get my business.

DEAR ABBY: What is a gentleman supposed to do when he is seated at a table and a lady walks over to his table and he stands up and she pushes his shoulder and says, "Oh, please sit down." Should he sit down or should he remain standing as long as she stands there even though she keeps telling him to sit down? My friend says if the lady says to sit down I should sit down. I say no gentleman sits down while a lady is standing no matter what she says. Who's right?

A GENTLEMAN
DEAR GENTLEMAN: Remain standing. If she pushes you down don't stand for it.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I made a very foolish mistake with a young lady and she became pregnant. I did a very dishonorable thing and volunteered for the Army to get away from her. My hitch is almost over and I will be separated in a month. The girl is waiting for me with the child she bore and she expects me to marry her. Abby, I didn't care for the Army, but I can not stand this girl. I don't know what I ever saw in her. I'm tempted to re-enlist to keep away from her. I keep hoping someone will take her off my hands before enlistment is through. Should I re-enlist or marry her? Please don't publish my name or location as I have enough trouble already.

FOULED UP
DEAR FOULED: Quit ducking your responsibility! If you are old enough to be a father you are old enough to be a man. You should support the child willingly. An unwilling bridegroom makes a pretty sad life-time companion. Get "re-acquainted" with the girl. It might help you to remember what you saw in her.

DEAR ABBY: When I was a little girl my father recited a poem to me. I have asked many people where it came from but nobody seems to know. Maybe you (or one of your readers) will know. It goes like this:
A wise old owl sat on an oak
The more he heard the less he spoke
The less he spoke the more he heard
Why can't we be like that wise old bird?

MRS. L. M. W.
DEAR MRS. L.M.W.: I do not know who wrote it. But gladly I'll quote it. These wise little words are not for the birds.

Abby Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: I don't object half as much to the woman who, when shopping for a dress, will let me show her every dress in the place and then say, "That isn't what I had in mind," as the woman who wears a size 42, tries on a dress without a griddle and says, "It doesn't do a thing for me."

ELLEN B. (25 years experience)

If you have a problem, write to Abigail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

What's Your Answer?

Question: Who should handle the family finances

MRS.
J. DON PETRING
727 Eldon Dr.

"Actually I think taking care of the finances should be a combined responsibility. In our home the routine bills are left to me for checking and paying, but the decisions on major expenditures are made by both my husband and myself.

"As I see it marriage is in itself a joint affair and I think the family finances should be, too."

MRS.
LOUIS A. ARTH
2625 Antelope Circle

"I definitely think that when it comes to planning household finances the responsibility of handling them should be shared by the husband and the wife.

"If the money matters are taken care of in this way there is better harmony in the family."

RICHARD PRAEL
Supervisor of Tellers, National Bank of Commerce.

"I know the family finances should be taken care of by my wife. All women should handle the finances so that in case anything should happen to their husbands, they will be capable of carrying on by themselves.

"Men usually are subjected to the care of finances in some way or other through their business."

E. N. THOMPSON
President of the First Trust Co.

"Naturally the individuals in the family who produce most or all of the income must have the largest voice in making final decisions. Most frequently the father is the principal source of income; but in today's economy, with large numbers of women working, the wife may make a major contribution also to the family's budget."

CLIFF THOEN
Cliff's "Smoke Shop"

"It's got to be the man who plans and takes care of the money. A man has more time to look after the family finances, whereas the wife and mother has enough to do in the home planning.

"I do think, however, that probably the ideal arrangement involves planning financial matters together. I also think there is more family harmony if the husband and wife work together."

Around The Town To Be December Bride

—although all eyes are turned to the week end and the Homecoming game, we hasten to state that the current week does have a moment or two in which football is not involved.

But, as we mentioned, the piece de resistance for the week is the game on Saturday — and the festivities which serve as a gay accompaniment.

One of the pre-game affairs will be the luncheon for which Mr. and Mrs. George G. Swingle will be host and hostess at the Lincoln Country Club. The party, which began as a "just-for-fun" affair, also will honor Texans Mr. and Mrs. J. Byron Koontz of Brownwood who will be the game and week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Swingle.

Other out of town guests at the party will include Mrs. W. W. Windle, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Bosse, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Zimmer, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Towle and Charles Uhlig, all of Falls City; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Ross of Kansas City, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Foster, also of Kansas City, who are to be the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Earle Foster.

—long before the week end, however, comes tomorrow— And tomorrow Mrs. Elsie Grainger Fullerton will be a luncheon hostess at Hotel Cornhusker when she entertains the members of a birthday club. The group will celebrate the anniversary of Mrs. Jaye Ridnour.

—then we come to Thursday and the morning coffee for which Mrs. Perry Branch will be hostess when she pays courtesy to Mrs. Harold Holtz of Washington D.C., who is spending several days as the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Ben James.

Mr. Holtz, so we hear, will be arriving later this week.

—there was a party at the Lincoln Saddle Club's club house on Friday evening—but not for the Saddle Club members. Tripping the light fantastic and having fun in general were the members of the Back Stage Club—the group composed of those who are of behind-the-scenes importance at the Community Playhouse.

—from St. Paul, Minn. comes the news that Mr. and Mrs. John Lowell Saylor have added a new member to the family circle. She is Susan Helen Saylor who arrived at the home of her new parents on Friday. Mrs. Saylor is the former Barbara Weishel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Weishel of Lincoln, and an Alpha Chi Omega at Nebraska. The paternal grandparents are Dr. and Mrs. Galen Saylor.

NU Dames Honor New Members

Festival Observed

The annual Harvest Festival was held at Exeter on Thursday. Sponsored by the community's churches, the festival featured many organizations, business firms and a number of children participating in the parade of floats.

Approximately 75 new members of the University of Nebraska Dames, wives of university students, were honored guests on Sunday afternoon at a tea held at the Faculty Club on the campus.

Greeting the new members were the officers and council members of the Dames, who also served as hostesses for the tea, and presiding at the refreshment table were Mrs. Faz Haghir, president, and Mrs. Robert Gallawa, immediate past

MRS. RONALD WEKESER

White and crimson roses decorated the candlelighted altar of the Sheridan Lutheran Church Saturday evening, Oct. 25, for the marriage of Miss Erma Eggerling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Eggerling, to Ronald Wekesser, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Clement. The 8 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. E. W. Philippi in the presence of 200 guests.

Crimson taffeta fashioned the wide-skirted frocks of Miss Marian Parde, the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Betty Niedfeldt and Miss Carol Nee-meyer, who carried cascades of white roses.

Serving as best man was Robert Anderson, and the ushers were Edgar Luebbe, Milford; Paul Eggerling, St. Francis, Kan.; Alvin Keller, Seward; and William Met-calf, Richard Eggerling, brother of the bride, and Merle Eggerling lighted the chancel candles.

The bride chose for her wedding a gown of white organza over lace and taffeta. Imported lace, traced with tiny pearls and opalescent sequins formed the shoulder-sleeved bodice, and below the elongated waist, the lace and organza skirt flared into fullness and extended into a train. Her illusion veil was held by a jeweled coronet, and she carried an arrangement of white and crimson roses.

Following a reception in the church parlors, the couple left for a wedding trip to the Ozarks. Mr. and Mrs. Wekesser will reside at 400 So. 33rd.

Newcomers, and news from the stork dominate the suburban scene this Monday morning in Cotner Terrace, Pershing Heights, and Northeast Heights; but we also find parties and house-guests on the agenda.

COTNER TERRACE

Word came from Bryan Memorial Hospital on Oct. 6 of the arrival of Jane Esther Britton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Britton. The young lady has a four year-old sister, Patricia Kay; and her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Loughary of Caledonia, Mo. The Rev. and Mrs. John L. Britton of Potosi, Mo., are her paternal grandparents.

We're rolling out the welcome mat this morning for Mr. and Mrs. Ronald L. Brannin who have moved into their new home at 2825 N. Cotner. Their previous address was 2222 E. St. Younger members of the Brannin family are four year-old Deborah; three year-old Douglas, and Dawn, who is one year old.

A warm welcome also is extended this morning to Mr. and Mrs. William R. Thompson and their four children, Andrea, 18; Shelia, 16; Judy, 11, and Billy, 10, who now are residing in Cotner Terrace. The Thompson family moved from 6801 Vine to 2801 N. Cotner.

A new member of the basinet brigade in Pershing Heights is Shelley Kay Haase who arrived on Oct. 7 at Bryan Memorial Hospital. The proud parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dale Haase, and Shelley has a three year-old sister, Helen Jeanine. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haase, and maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Shuman.

NORTHEAST HEIGHTS

Settling down in their new home in Northeast Heights are Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Johnson and their children, Pamela, Rodney and Sandra who have come to Lincoln from Billings, Mont. The Johnson family's new address is 2903 N. 65 St.

Entertaining the members of her bridge group at a dessert last week was Mrs. Richard Beachell. Present for the evening get together were Mrs. Al Schuster, Mrs. Bruce Kolb, Mrs. Richard Oaks, Mrs. Gale Darnall, Mrs. Hal Steiner, Mrs. Jack Meres, and Mrs. Marvin Brydl.

And speaking of Mrs. Beachell we find that she and Mr. Beachell were among the guests when Mr. and Mrs. Gale Darnell entertained the Couples Bridge Club last week.

Turning now to news of visitors we learn that Mr. and Mrs. Earl Joslyn of Belleville, Kan., have been guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joel E. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Joslyn returned to their home on Oct. 21, after a week's visit.

Grant Celebrates New Road, Airport

Grant, Neb.—A double celebration, signifying the dedication of two avenues of improved transportation for a small western Nebraska town, brought a lot of activity to the community of Grant this past weekend.

Citizens not only of Grant, but Venango, Elsie, Brandon, Granton and Madrid, as well as rural Perkins County, met in this prosperous community, with a typical display of western hospitality, to express their thanks for the new Grant Airport and a recently-completed all-weather highway.

Gov. Victor Anderson, State Aeronautics Director Rolland Harr, and State Highway Director

Nebraska counties, Perkins has more cattle than people — a most recent count showing a little over 15,500 cattle, compared with its 5,000 citizens.

Another fact about their county its residents are quick to point out is that in all of the hundreds of miles of roads criss-crossing and check-both would bring added prosperity to the communities.

As a climax to the celebration, the Grant Chamber of Commerce provided a pancake feed for the 1,500 celebrants.

Nestling at the foot of Nebraska's great sandhills country, the broad plains of Perkins County represent one of the largest wheat-producing areas in the state.

In one record-smashing year, Perkins sent to its granaries 6 1/4 million bushels of wheat, enough to provide more than 1,250 bushels for every man, woman and child of its 5,000 plus population.

Justifiably proud of its wheat-producing achievements, its citizens report they never have a crop failure.

As it is with many western vision Engineer D. O. Coolidge of McCook were on hand to help the local citizens with their celebration.

With music provided by the Perkins County High School band in its bright red and white uniforms, and the sparkling blue and white clad band of Venango High School, a colorful parade progressed up and down Grant's broad main street which is lined with brick and stone buildings.

Grant Mayor Morris Larsen, Chamber of Commerce President Fred McClenahan, Secretary-Treasurer Olie McFord, banker William Jackman, businessmen Sterling Powell, Hugo Buechler, L. A. Sullivan, and Frank Tharp, Mayor Henry Cooper of Elsie, Clarence Turner of Venango, and County Commissioners Oliver Hill and Tobe Ross were among those leading the celebration.

Gov. Anderson commended the residents for their assistance to the state in building the new $10,000 airport, their enthusiasm for the recently-completed $300,000 hard-surfacing of a 10-mile strip of State Highway 61 south of Grant, and commented that

COLTS, BROWNS STAY UNBEATEN

Brown Gets 4 Cleveland TDs

Chicago (AP)—Fullback Jimmy Brown, one of the most exciting players in the National Football League, blasted his way to 4 touchdowns Sunday, leading Cleveland to a 38-24 victory over the Chicago Cardinals.

Scoring on runs of 62, 41, 7 and 2 yards, the 228-pound second-year star from Syracuse rolled up 180 yards on 24 rushes and upped his season total to 815 yards in 5 games.

Cleveland's only other touchdown came on a tremendous 102-yard kickoff return by Leroy Bolden, one of many bright rookies in the Brown camp.

The Cardinals, who suffered their 3rd loss in 5 games, gave the undefeated Browns a battle in the first half when they left the field with a 21-17 lead. This was extended to 24-17 early in the 3rd quarter on a 32-yard field goal by Bobby Joe Conrad.

Brown, who scored Cleveland's first touchdown, barreled into the Cardinal end zone twice in the 3rd quarter and then added an unneeded touchdown in the final period to cap a brilliant performance.

Brown's 4 touchdowns gave him a season total of 14, two more than the all-time Cleveland record of 12 established by Dub Jones in 1951.

Cleveland wasted no time in taking a 7-0 lead. The Browns picked up a fumbled punt on the Cardinal 32 and 4 plays later Brown danced his way into the end zone from the 7-yard line. Lou Groza booted his first of 5 extra points.

The Cardinals came right back and marched 80 yards with quarterback Lamar McHan sneaking in for a touchdown. Conrad added the tying point. Cleveland made it 10-7 on a 12-yard field goal by Groza and that's how it stood until late in the second quarter when the Cards took the lead on a break.

The Cardinals attempted a field goal from the 42 but Junior Wren broke in and blocked the ball. Cardinal back Jimmy Sears picked up the loose ball and ran to the 7 from where McHan hit Gern Nagler with a scoring pass.

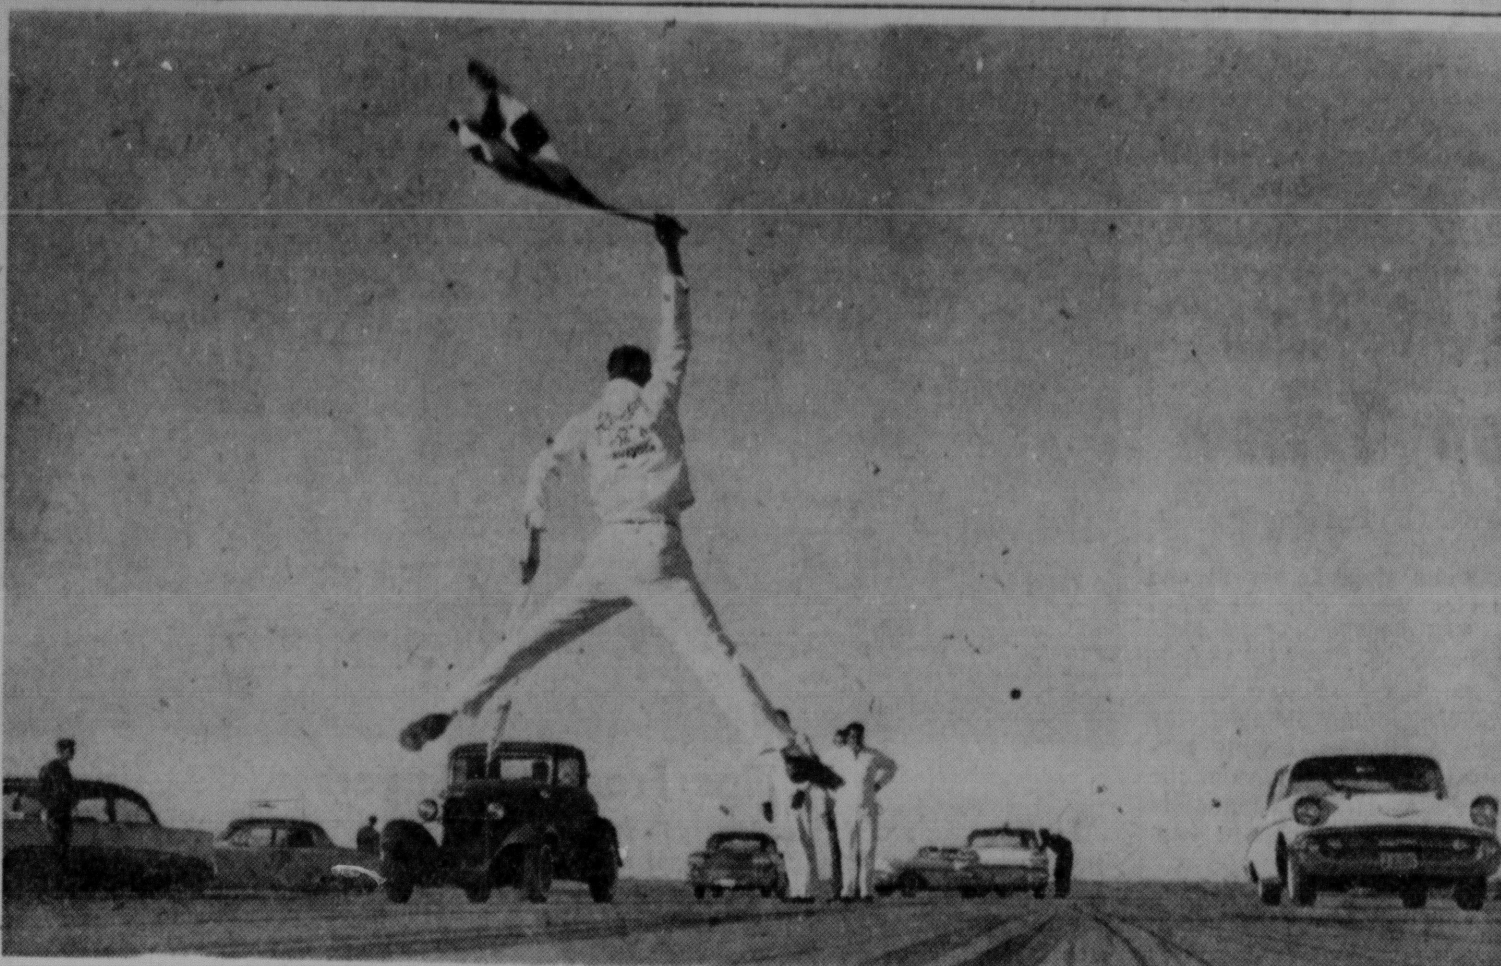

The Cardinals kicked off and saw their lead melt away as Bolden returned the kickoff for 102 yards, the longest scoring play in Cleveland's history.

Chicago, however, struck back on a fancy play with 7 seconds left in the half to take its halftime lead. Back on his own 18, McHan looped a 48-yard pass to Nagler who caught it on the Brown 23 and lateraled to Joe Childress who went the remaining distance for the score.

Except for Conrad's field goal early in the 3rd quarter, the Cardinals simply couldn't cope with Brown's bull-like rushes much to the dismay of a crowd of 30,933.

Cleveland scores—TD: Brown 4, (7-run, 4-run, 60-run, 2-run); Bolden (102 kickoff return); PAT: Groza 5, FG: Groza (12).

Chicago scoring—TD: McHan (1-plunge); Nagler (7-pass from McHan); Childress (71-lateral from Nagler after pass from McHan); PAT: Conrad 2, FG: Conrad (32).

Dragsters Display Loyalty To Cars In Sunday Races At Muni Airport

By David Clark

One dragster had just beaten the other for the trophy, after losing to him in an earlier time trial.

"The first time we went I couldn't get enough pressure," said the winner.

"Oh," said the loser. "That last time I crossed over. I either had to slow or go into you."

That supreme loyalty to the car even after the showdown was typical of the attitude of 75 or so dragsters who raced Sunday at Municipal Airport.

Most of the cars were stock cars, just like the kind driven by the nearly 1,000 spectators who turned out to watch. Only 5 full racing models were present. So the difference must have been in the driver.

"You get the urge, no matter what kind of car you have, to see if you can beat somebody else," said Whitey Bolte, Omaha truck driver who has piled up 24 trophies in 2 years of drag racing.

"The only place to do it is on the strip," Bolte added.

Drag racing essentially is a contest between two cars and their drivers. They line up at the starting line. The starter waves them off. They have a quarter of a mile to reach top speed and a timer is stationed down the strip to clock the winner, who then competes against other cars in his class until a champion is found.

The races are run according to National Hot Rod Assn. rules. Crews check each car when it's entered.

"A stock car must have stock equipment," said Jim Hennessey, member of the Rodders of Havelock, who ran the races in conjunction with the Lincoln Air Force Base Auto Club.

"The car must have a stock exhaust, hub caps off, windows rolled up, and the driver must wear a crash helmet if the car is a convertible," Hennessey said.

Top speed in the stock car class Sunday was 90.9 mph. The car, a 1958 Chevrolet, was driven by Cliff Miles of Dunlap, Iowa.

Major Dean Kirby, Air Force sponsor of the races, ran his full racer at 121 mph for the fastest time of the day. Kirby's car was built by Don Garlits, world champion dragster, who comes from Kirby's home town of Tampa, Fla.

"Everything on these dragsters is built for safety," Kirby said. "They have better brakes than any sports car made."

He pointed to padding and boiler plate shields put in for driver protection.

When the regular racing was finished, some dragsters challenged each other to grudge races.

"Grudge racing out here is the best thing to keep racing off the streets," Hennessey said.

"I can turn 101 in a quarter of a mile," Bolte said. "In town that would be over 100 in three blocks. It's better out here."

"We started holding drag races in February of 1957," Kirby said. "We wanted to cut down traffic accidents. And we did. Then we had to stop for 6 months and the accident rate rose. So we're getting started again."

Drag races will be held next Sunday and again Nov. 16.

Sunday's winners: Stock cars—Class E, Jim Goud, Hastings; Class D, Mike Rustmeier, Lincoln; '57 Chevy truck, Class C, Bill Wilson, Omaha; '58 Chevy, Class B, Al Handscher, Lincoln; '59 Ford, Class A, Paul Moran, Omaha; '58 Chevy, Super stock cars—Cliff Miles, Dunlap, Iowa; Modified stocks—Class D, Jim McGonegal, LAFB; '57 Chevy, Class C, Dick Diracamo, Omaha; '58 Chevy, Class B, Al Handscher, Lincoln; '59 Ford, Class A, Joe Gutsell, Lincoln; '52 Chevy.

Sports cars—Carl Fornia, Lincoln; '58 Corvette. Hot rods—Bill Hanna, Omaha. Dragsters—Class C, Bill Smith, Lincoln; Class B, Bob Ellis, Omaha; Class A, Dean Kirby, LAFB.

POINT BLANK

By Don Bryant

Sports Editor, The Star

Boulder, Colo.—Football fans in this area, which includes Denver—the boom town of the modern Rockies—will get big-time football in wholesale lots if current discussions materialize into the real thing.

There's a move afoot in these parts to have the Air Force Academy play 5 games at Colorado's Folsom Field, using the 45,000 seat stadium as its home football base.

The Golden Buffs would use Folsom the other 5 dates of the gridiron season. Thus, fans around here could have 10 straight Saturday's of top-notch football.

It would certainly mean a lot of fine football for the fans, as long as they wouldn't go bankrupt in the process.

Main proponent of the Falcon-Buffalo wedding is William C. (Kayo) Lam, the athletic business manager of Colorado. Kayo put it this way:

"Let CU and the Air Force Falcons each play 5 home games in Boulder. Arrange the schedule of each team so that there would be 10 consecutive football Saturdays in Boulder."

But while Colorado officials apparently would be agreeable to such a set up, nothing definite has been arranged and it will be some time before the deal could be worked out since schedules are already made for years hence.

"The Air Force people need and want a big stadium to play their home games, but as yet there hasn't been any planned thinking between us in that direction (double home fields)," said Colorado athletic director, Dean Harry Carlson.

There's no doubt about the Air Force wanting a large stadium in order to lure top-draw crowds and get in on the collegiate football gravy train. But to date there has been a surprising lack of talk about building a stadium at the Academy, located near Colorado Springs.

This is surprising since no expense has been spared to give the fly-boy 4-year wonders the ultimate in plush facilities. After all, the spot was selected because of the scenery and the beautiful pine trees that abound in the area. And then most of the native beauty was ripped out so that the Academy could be properly landscaped—for a paltry million or so, of course.

At present, except for the scheduled Air Force-Colorado game, the Falcons will stick to Denver's Hilltop Stadium which seats a poor-pay 27,500—poor pay by big-time standards—for its home games.

Air Force brass will tell you that it's tough to attract the likes of Notre Dame, Michigan and other "big names" unless you have a Coliseum worthy of today's chase for the fans' buck. In future years, AFA will host such teams as Missouri, UCLA, Stanford and Baylor, but the Falcons are shooting for the elite teams, which they no doubt will be among in a short time.

Apparently the Academy would go for the deal all right. According to Capt. Forrest Cook, the athletic business manager of the Falcons, the AFA would be happy to use CU's Folsom Field "for any game that we feel would fill the stadium."

That puts it squarely up to the Colorado Regents, say the know-it-alls around here.

Unitas Directs Baltimore Win

Baltimore (AP)—The unbeaten Baltimore Colts, thriving on the brilliant generalship of quarterback Johnny Unitas and a savage defense, racked up a 35-10 National Football League victory over the Washington Redskins Sunday.

A record sellout crowd of 54,403 howled itself hoarse in Memorial Stadium as the Colts stormed back from a 7-0 deficit early in the first period and rolled to their 5th straight triumph.

Unitas, shrugging off Bert Zagers' 4-yard scoring dash for the Redskins after the opening kickoff, passed for two touchdowns and set up two more with his accurate tosses.

Lenny Lyles, the flashy rookie from Louisville, gave the hometown fans the biggest thrill of the day when he tallied the other Colt TD by racing 101 yards on a kickoff return. It was his second end zone-to-end zone dash of the year.

After Zagers capped an 11-play, 70-yard Washington scoring march with his touchdown run, Unitas quickly steered the Colts to the equalizer. He passed 45 yards to halfback Lenny Moore as the big gainer in a 75-yard drive, then sent Moore around left end for the final 12.

Steve Myhra booted the first of his 5 conversions to match Sam Baker's point after touchdown.

In the second period, Johnny climaxed a 72-yard campaign with a 17-yard flip to end Raymond Berry in the left corner of the end zone and completed 3 straight passes good for 54 yards before Alan Ameche rammed over from the 4.

Baker's 31-yard field goal for Washington, Lyles' breathtaking touchdown dash with the next kickoff, and a 48-yard Unitas-to-Berry pass wound up with the scoring for the 3rd period and the game.

His first touchdown toss marked the 20th straight game in which Unitas had completed a scoring pass, leaving him only 3 games off the record held by Cecil Isbell, the one-time Green Bay Packers great.

Johnny clicked on 8 of 15 passes for 183 yards and his understudy, George Shaw, connected on 4 of five for 21.

Meanwhile, a surging Colt line, led by end Gino Marchetti put such pressure on a trio of Washington quarterbacks that they completed only 4 of 16 attempts. These included 3 of 9 by little Eddie LeBaron, who had gone into the game with a completion average of 56.6 per cent.

Eddie also gained less than 6 yards per pass, compared with his pre-game mark of 9.70, as Marchetti's several times smothered him for long losses and once batted down the ball as it left LeBaron's hand. Ralph Guglielmi and Rudy Bukich fared little better when they took turns spelling LeBaron.

Ameche was the usual workhorse in the Colt backfield, lugging 13 times for 66 yards. Moore gained the same distance in 7 carries, while Zagers led Washington runners with 60 yards in 11 trips.

All told, Baltimore hung up 186 yards running and 204 through the air in achieving its unprecedented 5th consecutive victory. Washington gained 175 on the ground and netted only 46 passing.

Washington, 7-0, 3-0-10 Baltimore, 7-14, 0-35 Washington, TD, Zagers (4 run), PAT, Baker, FG, Baker (31).

Baltimore: TD, Moore (12 run), Berry (2 17 yard pass from Unitas, 48 pass from Unitas), Lyles (10), Kickoff return, Ameche (4 run), PAT, Myhra 5.

Lions Finally

Get First Win

Los Angeles (AP)—The champion Detroit Lions, registering their first victory in the National Football League, plastered the scoreboard with 5 touchdowns and two field goals to defeat the favored Los Angeles Rams 41-24.

A tremendous crowd of 81,703 watched the local heroes make a stirring threat in the 3rd quarter but the Lions came back to squelch the hopes with 13 points in the final quarter and sew up the game.

Veteran quarterback Tobin Rote connected with 3 touchdown passes to lead the Lions to the triumph, one that was propelled early in the game when Detroit unleashed a sen-

Schuyler's Power Not Known

... Scores Have B Leader Above Class A Clubs

By Al Beebe

Just how good is Schuyler?

The Class B leaders have beaten 6 opponents with ease, and a 7th which was somewhat tougher, but is the most impressive. That's the 13-0 victory over Columbus, ranked 5th in Class A this week.

If Schuyler played more Class A teams, the Warriors would probably be rated highly in the Class A list. But South Sioux City, beaten 13-0, is the only other A opponent on a 9-game schedule.

But look at some comparative scores, working from the Columbus win. Columbus beat Fremont, 41-0, which indicates Schuyler is 54 points better than Fremont.

Fremont tied Omaha Benson, so the margin is the same there. Omaha South, which moves into a tie for first in Class A this week with Creighton Prep, beat Benson only 31-7.

That means Schuyler is 30 points better than either South or Prep, which played an 18-18 tie.

Of course, comparative scores can be highly misleading, but you see the point. It leaves little doubt as to Schuyler's claim to the No. 1 spot in Class B. But they would have to play more Class A clubs to earn a rating in that chart.

Only Omaha Holy Name, unbeaten and with 4 A clubs on the schedule, and Crete, 2-4-1 but with 6 Class A teams scheduled, play enough big schools to make the jump from the B to A list. Neither is likely to do it. Holy Name is rated 4th this week, Crete is not listed.

But Crete could move into the list next week in a big way. Crete should provide Schuyler with its toughest remaining test Friday at Crete. After that Schuyler must only get past off-beaten Wahoo Nov. 7 at home for a perfect record.

Schuyler Coach Don Watchorn welcomed 17 lettermen back from a moderately successful 1957 team. The squad is led by 172-pound fullback Bob Kasik, with considerable help from junior quarterback Larry Trofholz, 174, and another junior, 195-pound halfback Frank Sobota.

This trio paces a ground attack which averages around 350 yards per game. With this type of rushing, Schuyler has passed very little.

But it is the line, particularly on defense, which has made Schuyler the power it is.

The line has experience, size, and speed, and that is about all you can ask.

Don Gerrard, 190-pound tackle, is the mainstay. Others are tackle Maurice Dobry (204), guards Richard Krall (172) and Roger Wilshusen (160), and end Elden Hobza (177).

Schuyler went through 5 foes without a dent in its goalline. Albion and York have each scored once in the last two games, both times when Schuyler put on its biggest offensive shows.

Wins have been over Fullerton (28-0), South Sioux City (13-0), David City (28-0), Seward (28-0), Columbus, Albion (53-6), and York (40-7).

There was some shuffling in both classes last week. In addition to South's moving into a tie with Prep, Columbus moved to 5th when both Lincoln High and Omaha Westside failed to impress.

The Links fell to 6th after losing to potent South, 47-0, while Westside, which had plenty of trouble beating Lincoln Northeast 7-0, drops to 8th. Scottsbluff moves in between the two after its 65-6 shellacking of North Platte.

Omaha Tech bumped Omaha North from the list and moved into North's No. 9 position, ahead of Hastings, with a 15-6 win over the Vikings.

In Class B, Broken Bow was pressed to beat Class C Loup City and fell from 4th to 6th, Omaha Holy Name and Blair both moving up a notch.

Parilli Pitches Green Bay To 38-35 NFL Win Over Eagles

Green Bay, Wis. (P)—Babe Parilli pitched touchdown passes of 34, 14, 10 and 25 yards Sunday to stake the Green Bay Packers to their first victory of the National Football League campaign, a 38-35 decision over the Philadelphia Eagles.

The Babe, having his first start of the season, a spectacular one, zeroed in on Max McGee twice and Al Carmichael and Gary Knafele once each before a city stadium turnout of 31,043.

The Packers turned two fumble recoveries and an intercepted pass into points, ambushing the Eagles with a 21-point explosion in the 3rd quarter. With the score 38-14, Philadelphia staged a 3-touchdown rally of its own in the final period to throw a scare into Green Bay.

Parilli, who has been cast in the role of understudy to the less-experienced quarterback Bart Starr because of the Babe's hot and cold tendencies, flipped a 25-yard pass to McGee in the 3rd quarter for the decisive touchdown.

That touchdown, one of 3 thrown by Parilli in the 3rd quarter, put the Packers ahead 38-14. The Eagles, far from hurried, scratched out last-chance touchdowns in the 4th quarter on Billy Wells' 3-yard run and a pair of TD passes by Norm Van Brocklin. The veteran quarterback completed 3 touchdowns in all, including a pair to Tommy McDonald.

Paul Hornung's 30-yard field goal in the first quarter accounted for the final 3-point difference. The Packers, in beating the Eagles for the 13th time in 14 meetings, now have a 1-3-1 NFL record. The Eagles are 1-4.

Philadelphia 0-14 0-31-35
Green Bay 3-14 21-0-38
Philadelphia TD, Bart Starr (70, 60), McDonald (2), 38 pass from Van Brocklin; 19, pass from Van Brocklin; Wells (3 run), Mitchell (13 pass from Van Brocklin), PAT, Walston 3.
Green Bay TD, McGee (2), 34, pass from Parilli; 25, pass from Parilli; Ferguson (2 run), Carmichael (15, pass from Parilli), Knafele (10, pass from Parilli), PAT, Hornung 5, FG, Hornung 5-29.

Giants Convert Fumbles, Win 17-6

New York (P)—An alert New York Giant team recovered 3 fumbles by Pittsburgh fullback Tom Tracy, converted two into scores and defeated the Steelers 17-6 Sunday in a rain-drenched National Football League game.

The victory, watched by 25,007 hardy Yankee Stadium spectators, was the Giants' 3rd in 5 games and gave them undisputed possession of second place in the Eastern Conference. The loss was Pittsburgh's 4th in 5 games.

The Giants scored in 3 of the 4 periods but it was not until the final quarter that they were able to cross the goal line without the aid of a Steeler miscue.

Leading by a precarious 4 points, 10-6, New York climaxed a 70-yard march, with quarterback Don Heinrich sneaking over from the one to put the game on ice. Even then the Giants had to stop two Pittsburgh drives inside their own 5-yard line to assure themselves of victory.

Tim Miner, rookie end from Tulsa University, scored all of Pittsburgh's points with a pair of field goals.

Pittsburgh 6-33-0-6
New York 7-3-0-17
New York: FG, Miner (27, 49).
New York: TD, Karlovitz (21 recovered fumble); Heinrich (1 run), PAT, Summerall 2, FG, Summerall (34).

Fan Swings At Halas As Bears Top 'Frisco

San Francisco (P)—Speedy Willie Galimore raced 20 yards to score the first time he carried the ball and caught a 47-yard touchdown pass as the Chicago Bears beat the San Francisco 49ers 27-14 Sunday in a tumultuous National Football League game.

The rugged battling brought loud and long boing from the partisan crowd of 59,441, and at half time a fan threw a punch at the Bears' 68-year-old coach and owner, George Halas.

The sequence which roiled the crowd and brought police reinforcements to protect against a possible riot came with 2½ minutes remaining in the second period.

As the halftime gun sounded Halas, 49ers coach Frank Albert and several players gathered at midfield to talk with officials.

As they parted a dozen or more fans rushed on to the field and one, identified by police as William Dunn, 33, of Palo Alto, threw a wild punch at Halas. Albert and Bear assistant coaches dragged him away amid a flurry of blows.

DETROIT GETS 1ST TRIUMPH

sational 104-yard touchdown play.

It came after the Rams' Del Shofner had kicked a 16-yard field goal. On the kickoff Gene Gorman took the ball 4 yards inside the end zone, returned it 14 yards, handed it off to Terry Barr, who raced 86 yards for the score.

It sent the Lions into the front and they never relinquished the lead.

The Lions scored two touchdowns in the second quarter, with Rote passing 15 yards to Dave Middleton for one and to Howard (Hopalong) Cassady for 35 yards for the other. Quarterback Billy Wade of the Rams threw an 11-yard pass to Shofner for a touchdown in the second quarter and Detroit enjoyed a 21-10 lead at the half.

Cassady returned the kickoff opening the 3rd quarter 31 yards and on the next play Rote connected with Jim Doran. He caught it knee high and kept on going 56 yards to put the Lions 18 points in front.

The Rams, fired up when Detroit missed a field goal attempt, then sent their followers into an uproar with two rapid touchdowns. They swept 80 yards in 5 plays and Jon Arnett completed the drive with a 15-yard sweep around right end.

Seconds later defensive halfback Will Sherman intercepted a Rote pass one handed and raced back 28 yards. This put Los Angeles behind only 28-24.

Ram dreams vanished quickly in the 4th when Jim Martin kicked a 14-yard field goal, center Wayne Walker intercepted a pass and fought his way 33 yards for a touchdown and Jerry Perry completed the scoring with a field goal from 8 yards out.

Detroit 7-14 7-13-41
Los Angeles 3-14 6-23
Detroit: TD, Barr (36 kickoff return), Cassady (35 pass from Rote), Doran (56 pass from Rote), Walker (33 intercepted pass), PAT, Martin 5, FG, Martin (14), Perry (8).
Los Angeles: TD, Shofner (11 pass from Wade), Arnett (15 run), Sherman (28 pass interception), PAT, Cochran 3, FG, Shofner (16).

Police booked him on a battery charge.

At one stage in the second quarter when officials ruled the ball dead before the 49ers recovered a Chicago fumble at the San Francisco 24, the crowd's boing delayed the game 6 minutes. Boing continued so loud that the public address system was inaudible and officials pleaded in vain for quiet.

San Francisco grabbed a 7-0 lead on a 25-yard touchdown pass from quarterback John Brodie to end Billy Wilson. It capped an 80-yard opening quarter drive that took 11 plays.

On the first play of the second period the 188-pound Galimore raced off right tackle for 20, and George Blanda's conversion tied the count.

Blanda added a 20-yard field goal 6 plays after Brodie fumbled and Earl Leggett recovered at San Francisco's 41.

Blanda then kicked a 15-yard field goal after the big outburst from the crowd, putting the Bears ahead 13-7 at the half.

In the 3rd period, Chicago drew out to 20-7 with a 58-yard pass maneuver from quarterback Ed Brown to J. C. Caroline, who ran the last 24.

In the 4th, reserve quarterback Zeke Bratkowski hooked up with Galimore on the 47-yard touchdown thrust. Willie gathered in the ball on the 37 and sped down the sideline. Just before that, the 49ers had scored on a two-yard plunge by Hugh McElhenny after Matt Hazeltine intercepted a Brown pass.

Chicago TD, Galimore (2 run), 47 pass from Bratkowski; Caroline (58, pass from Brown), PAT, Blanda 3, FG, Blanda 2 (20, 15).
San Francisco TD, Wilson (25 pass from Brodie), McElhenny (2 run), PAT, Soltau 2.

LINCOLN MIDGETS TIE, 0-0

Omaha (AP)—Omaha Peter Pan and Lincoln Roberts played to a 0-0 tie Sunday and will share as co-champions the Nebraska midget football title.

Tuck Spalding was responsible for the tie, killing off the final Lincoln threat with a pass interception in the final seconds of the game.

The Lincoln entry provided the only offensive push during the afternoon, twice being halted inside the Peter Pan 20.

After the two clubs battled between the 35 yard stripes in the first half, Lincoln made its first drive in the 3rd quarter, moving to the 18 before Spalding and his mates took over on downs.

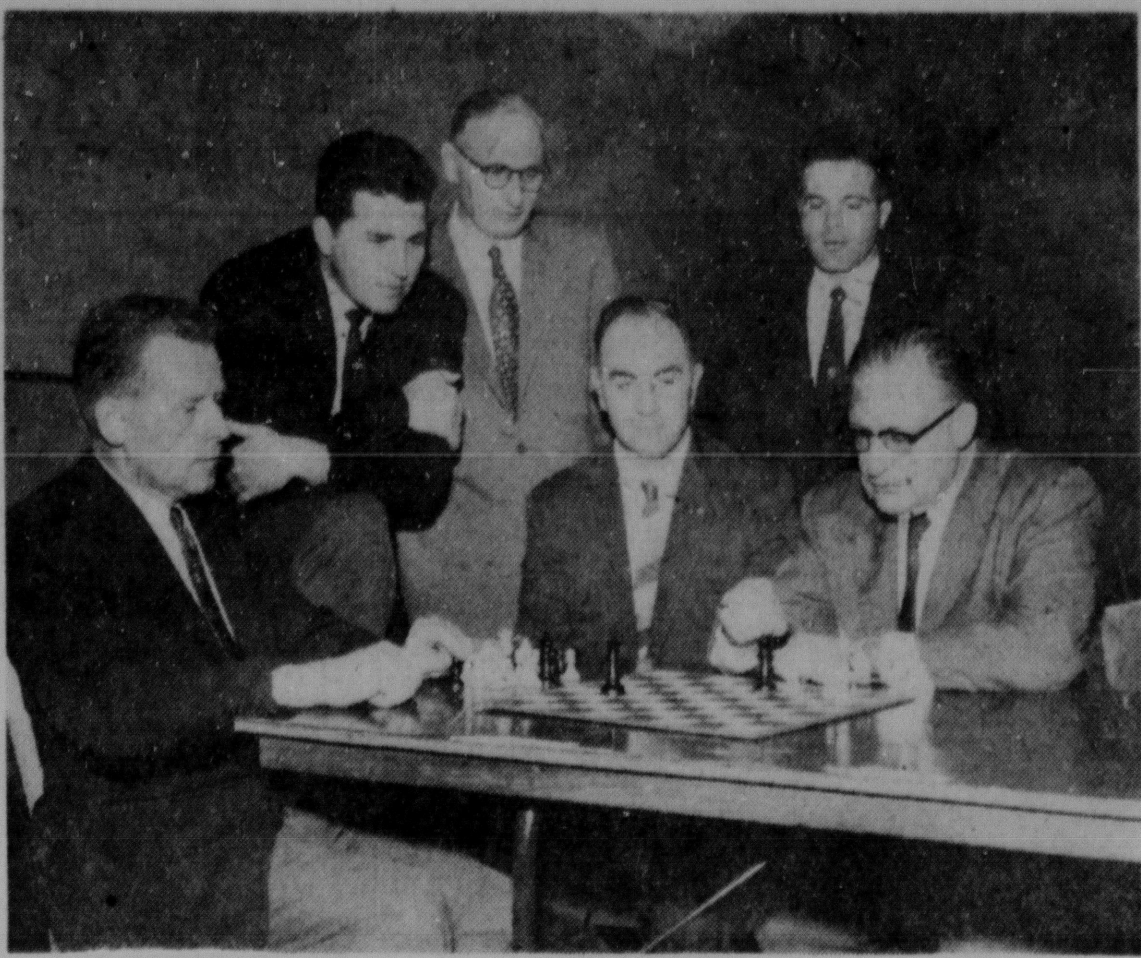

Using a screen pass to advantage, Lincoln moved goalward late in the game. Spalding stole a pass on his 12 and lugged it out to the 35 with time left for one play for the Omahans.

Eppeys of Omaha won consolation honors, beating Lincoln Police, 12-6. With 1:15 remaining, Billy Corcoran pitched a 30 yard pass to Bruce Holzappel to break a 6-6 deadlock.

Tips From An Expert

Lincoln Chess Club members get some tips on the game from International Master George Koltanowsky (seated right) during his visit to Lincoln Sunday. Seated are Lincoln city champ Alexander Liep-

Lincolmites Easy For Chess Whiz

George Koltanowsky of San Francisco, International Master at chess, had little trouble with Lincoln players during an exhibition at the YMCA Sunday afternoon.

Koltanowsky, whose international title ranks him next to the top in the eyes of the World Chess Federation, won 2 matches, beating a total of 18 players.

He matched wits simultaneously with 17 members of the Lincoln Chess Club in the first game, beating 16 and tying with Lincoln city champ Alexander Liepnieks.

Then he turned around and played blind chess (where he doesn't look at the board) with two more players and beat both of them.

Koltanowsky, who is a former Belgium chess champion and who is now a naturalized U.S. citizen, is on a chess promotion tour of the states. He also lectured on the game to the Lincoln gathering which numbered 30.

MacKay Enlists

Wilmington, Ohio (P)—Barry MacKay of Dayton, a leading American tennis amateur, is now in the U.S. Air Force.

He walked in to Clinton County Air Force Base and enlisted for a 6 month term.

Before he enters Air Force training, MacKay said he plans to take a trip to Australia where next month he will compete with the U.S. Davis Cup tennis team.

Knight-Rocket Contest Tops Local Prep Slate

By Bob McCoy
Lincoln's hottest team versus the coldest at the present time — that's the lineup for Friday night as Lincoln Southeast and Lincoln Northeast square off in this week's prep football feature.

Southeast, winner of 3 in a row and a club destined for more victories, is the hot team while Northeast has been a cold fish recently, losing 6 in a row.

The contest—at the Oval—will be Northeast's homecoming and the Rockets may be the only team in town to crown a queen without winning a football game. All 3 other local clubs won their homecoming affairs.

Southeast's latest triumph was a 14-0 whitewashing of Fairbury for the only Capital City win last week. With other teams, the picture was not so bright as Lincoln High and Pius X dropped decisions by wide margins and NE was blanked for the second time in a row.

So Southeast will be the favorite against the Rockets

Chadron and Peru, two of the 3 unbeaten Nebraska College Conference teams, meet at Peru Friday to highlight this week's schedule. Kearney, the other team with a 5-0 record and the title favorite, has an easy date the same night at winless Dana.

Also highlighting the week is Nebraska Wesleyan's Homecoming contest against Concordia, 1-5 in the loop compared with NWU's 3-2 record.

Hastings, tied for second with Wesleyan with both probably out of title consideration, travels to Wayne on Saturday, while Midland is at Doane the same night.

Friday and will be out to avenge a 19-6 NE upset last year, which came when the Knights were rolling.

Lincoln High, 47-0 loser to Omaha South last week for the worst licking in Link history, travels to Omaha Tech Friday looking for a comeback.

The LHS assignment this week should be much easier than last, but still could go either way. Tech has trailed the Omaha leaders — South, Central and Creighton Prep — all season and could get hot against the Links, who will be favored.

Pius X, victim of a 59-7 massacre at the hands of Iowa prep power Sioux City Heelan, closes its season Friday night at Hebron. This time Pius will be playing in its own class.

Hebron is unbeaten in 7 games with a 6-0-1 mark, but is expected to be the underdog to Pius due to a weaker schedule.

Pius' record is 4-2-1, tops in Lincoln, and the Thunderbolts will be trying to add another win to make it 3 consecutive successful seasons in 11-man play.

Two-Point Rule Confuses Top Team Issue

By The Associated Press
College football's optional "go for broke" two-point conversion was put in this year to add excitement to the game and to reduce ties. It has succeeded in the first of these purposes but, by coincidence or not, there have been more draws among the big teams than any year of the modern era.

Top-ranked Army and No. 2 Ohio State are the latest to have their lustre dimmed by no-decision standoffs, thus throwing the race for national honors into a wide-open scramble.

With the campaign half spent, one fact seems to stand out clearly today. There is no overpowering, all-conquering college team this year in the old Army, Notre Dame and Oklahoma traditions.

Army was tied 14-14 by a rugged Pittsburgh team which dominated the last half. Behind 6-14, the Panthers took the second half kickoff 58 yards to a touchdown and then made the important two-point conversion on a pass from Ivan Tomic to Dick Haley.

Ohio State played a 7-7 standstill with Wisconsin. After Dale Hackbart had raced 64 yards for the Badgers' score, Ohio State matched it with a one-yard plunge by Bob White. But the Buckeyes chose not to go for the two-point conversion which might have won the game.

These two deadlocks, plus losses suffered by Texas,

Northwestern and Clemson (the latter last Thursday), reduced the thinning unbeaten list among major teams to 4—Mississippi (6-0), Louisiana State (6-0), Colorado (5-0) and Rutgers (5-0).

Mississippi and Louisiana State clash Saturday night at Baton Rouge, La., in a game which will spoil at least one of the perfect slates. Colorado's streak is threatened at Boulder, Colo., by an Oklahoma team which has won 65 straight games in the Big 8 Conference.

Rutgers, with a mild schedule, apparently has the best chance of completing the season unspoiled. The team from the sport's spawning ground crushed Lehigh 44-13 Saturday on the sparkling play of Billy Austin and next goes against Delaware.

Six major teams are undefeated but once tied. In addition to Army and Ohio State, these include Air Force and Iowa, who played a 13-13 draw earlier; Auburn and Virginia Military Institute.

From the Army-Ohio State pinnacle right down to the bottom, the weekly top ten rankings underwent a shakeup. Texas, No. 4 and 8th-ranked Northwestern's honeymoon was ended abruptly by 7th-placed Iowa 26-20 and Clemson, No. 10, had its hopes shattered by South Carolina 26-6.

In addition, Louisiana State, No. 3, barely edged Florida 10-7 on a late 49-yard field goal by Tommy Davis; Auburn, No. 5, had to score 14 points in the 3rd period to beat Maryland 20-7 and Mississippi, No. 6, outplayed much of the way, barely squeezed by winless Arkansas 14-12. Only Oklahoma, No. 9, had it easy—40-6 victor over Kansas State.

The post-season bowl picture now has begun to take temporary shape.

Iowa, leading the Big 10 with a 3-0 league mark, is favored for the Rose Bowl spot against either California or Oregon State. The Hawkeyes' severe test comes two weeks hence against Ohio State, the defending champion who is ineligible to return.

The resurgent Golden Bears of California, led by Joe Kapp, took the lead in the Pacific Coast Conference with a 23-6 victory over defending titlist Oregon, Oregon State, beaten in the season opener by Southern California, remains solidly in the race after a 14-12 triumph over Washington.

Louisiana State, the home product, is the No. 1 choice for the host spot in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans. Mississippi played there last year. Auburn, on probation, is ineligible.

Rice, on its one-sided victory over Texas, has taken the front position in the Cotton Bowl picture but Texas Christian, unbeaten in the league, is still to be contended with. Southern Methodist plunged back into the limelight by handing Georgia Tech its worst licking in 8 years

The Orange Bowl at Miami still has an agreement with the Big 8, meaning the Colorado-Oklahoma winner probably will bask in the Florida sunshine next Jan. 1. But the Atlantic Coast end of the axis is no longer committed. This means teams such as Clemson, Wake Forest and North Carolina are on the open market.

Jim Tatum's North Carolina team is coming fast after a slow start. Led by Jack Cummings, the Tarheels trampled Wake Forest 26-7. Duke won again, beating North Carolina State 20-13.

Chances are the deep South bowls will look to the east this year for competition, with Pittsburgh and Syracuse offering prime material. Pitt and Syracuse, the latter a 14-6 winner over Penn State, clash at Syracuse Saturday in the big game of eastern independents. The contest will share the sectional limelight with the Navy-Notre Dame battle at Baltimore.

Navy bounced back from its loss to Tulane with a whopping 50-8 triumph over Ivy League Penn. Notre Dame bowed to an old antagonist, Purdue, 29-22.

Cornell became the Ivy League favorite with its smashing 34-8 victory over Princeton while lightly regarded Harvard was upsetting Dartmouth 16-8.

The south's big upset was Alabama's 9-7 triumph over Mississippi State—the first major win for coach Bear Bryant at the helm of the Crimson Tide.

The Japanese had looked forward to seeing their strike-out king, southpaw Shoichi Kaneda, face the Americans.
